

Friends are going to play a trick on the teacher. They ask you to help. You decide to help just a little so you won't be in too much trouble.

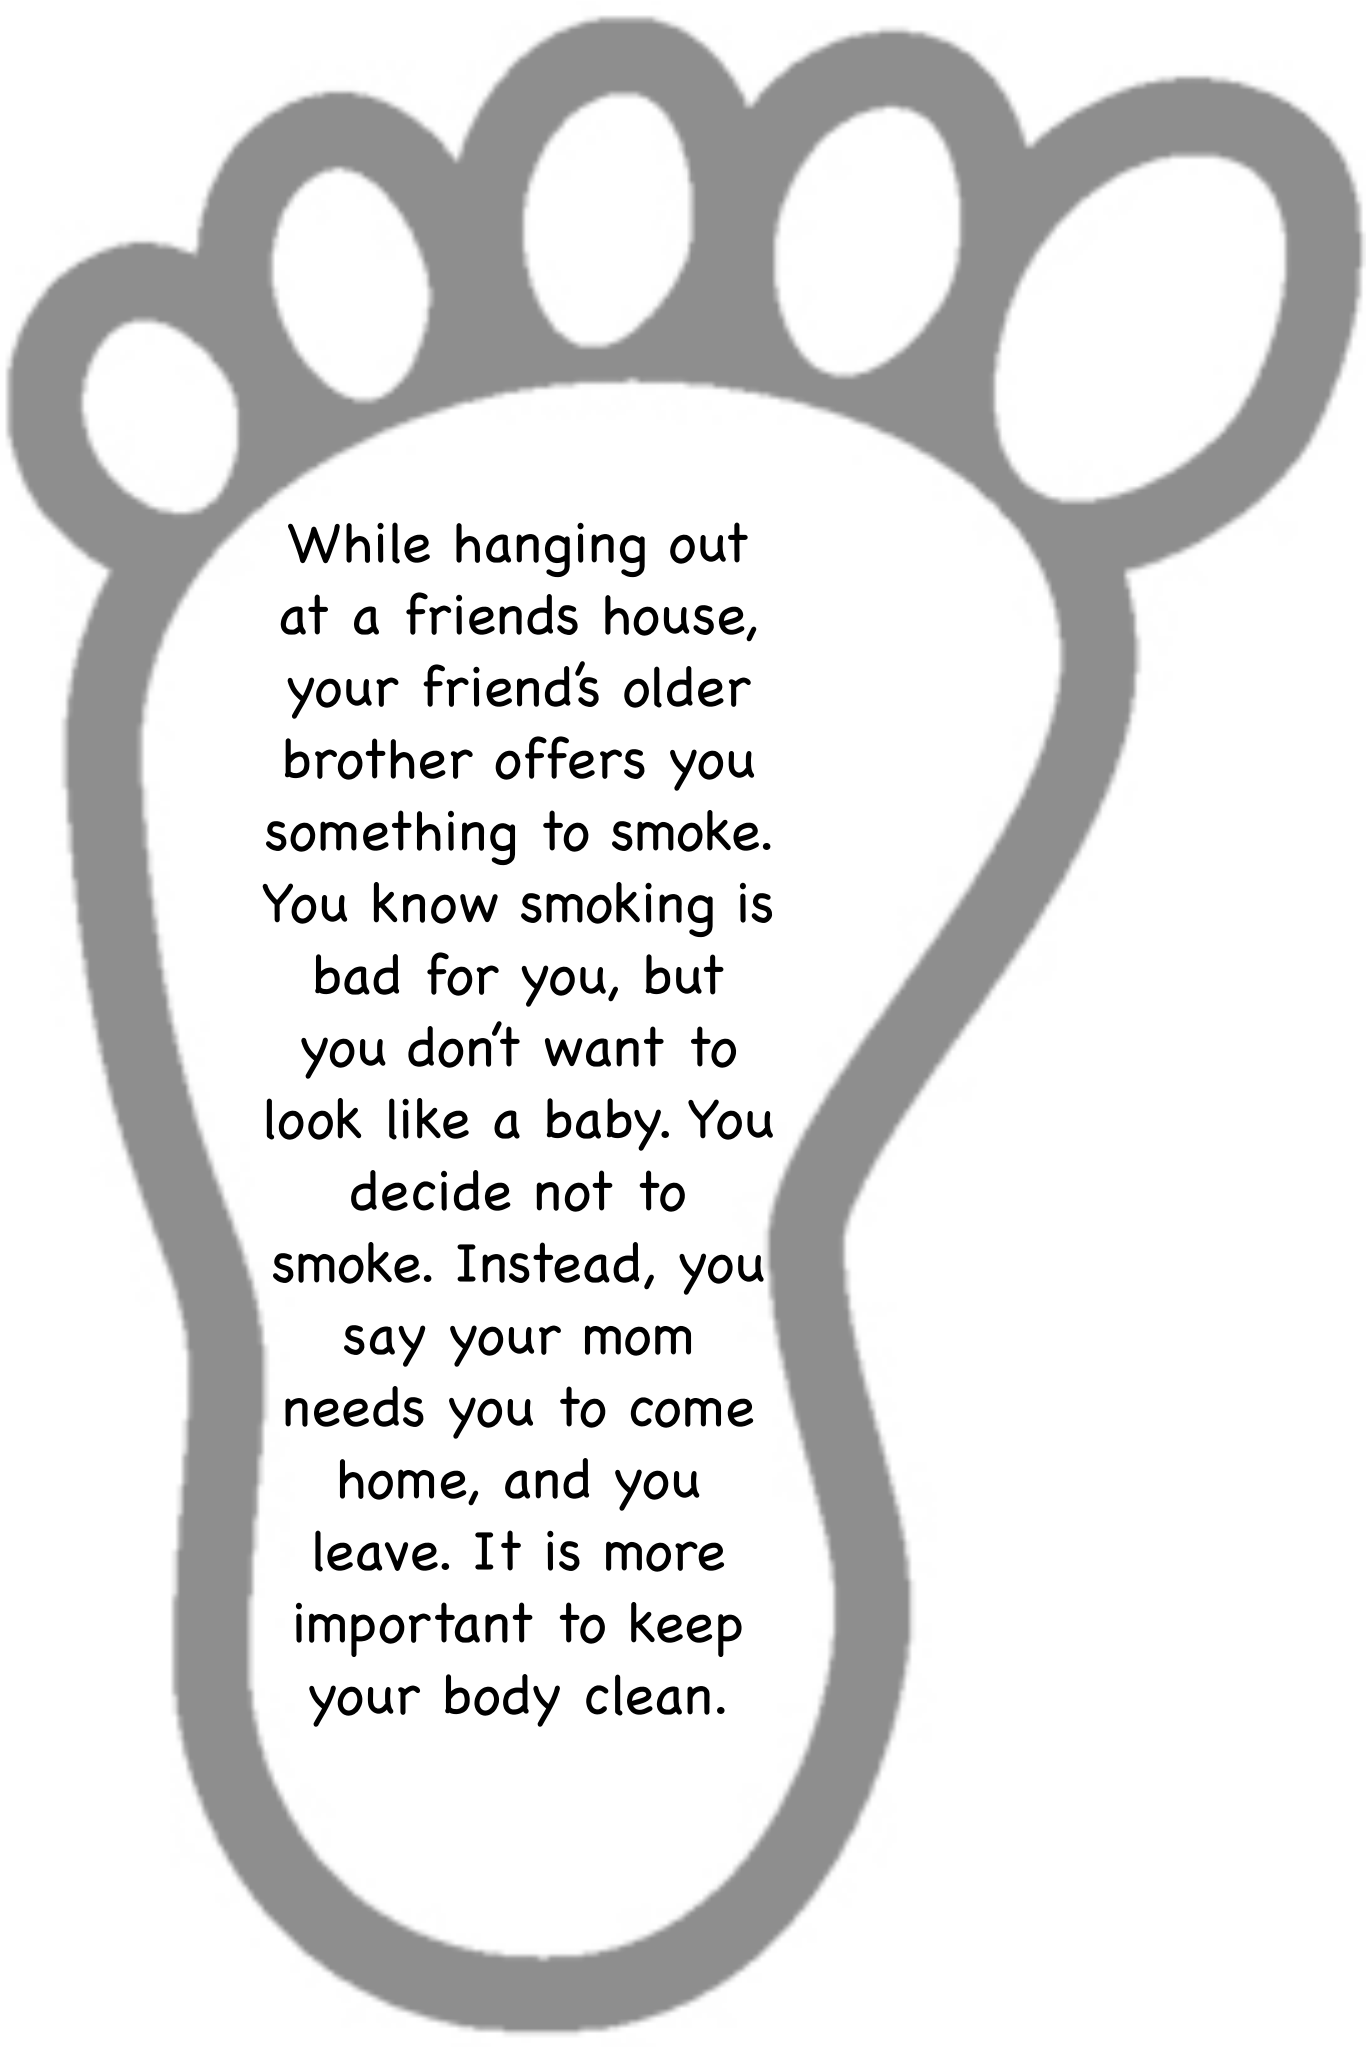

Friends are going to play a trick on the teacher. They ask you to help. You decide this is not a good idea and tell your friends this even though they begin to tease you.

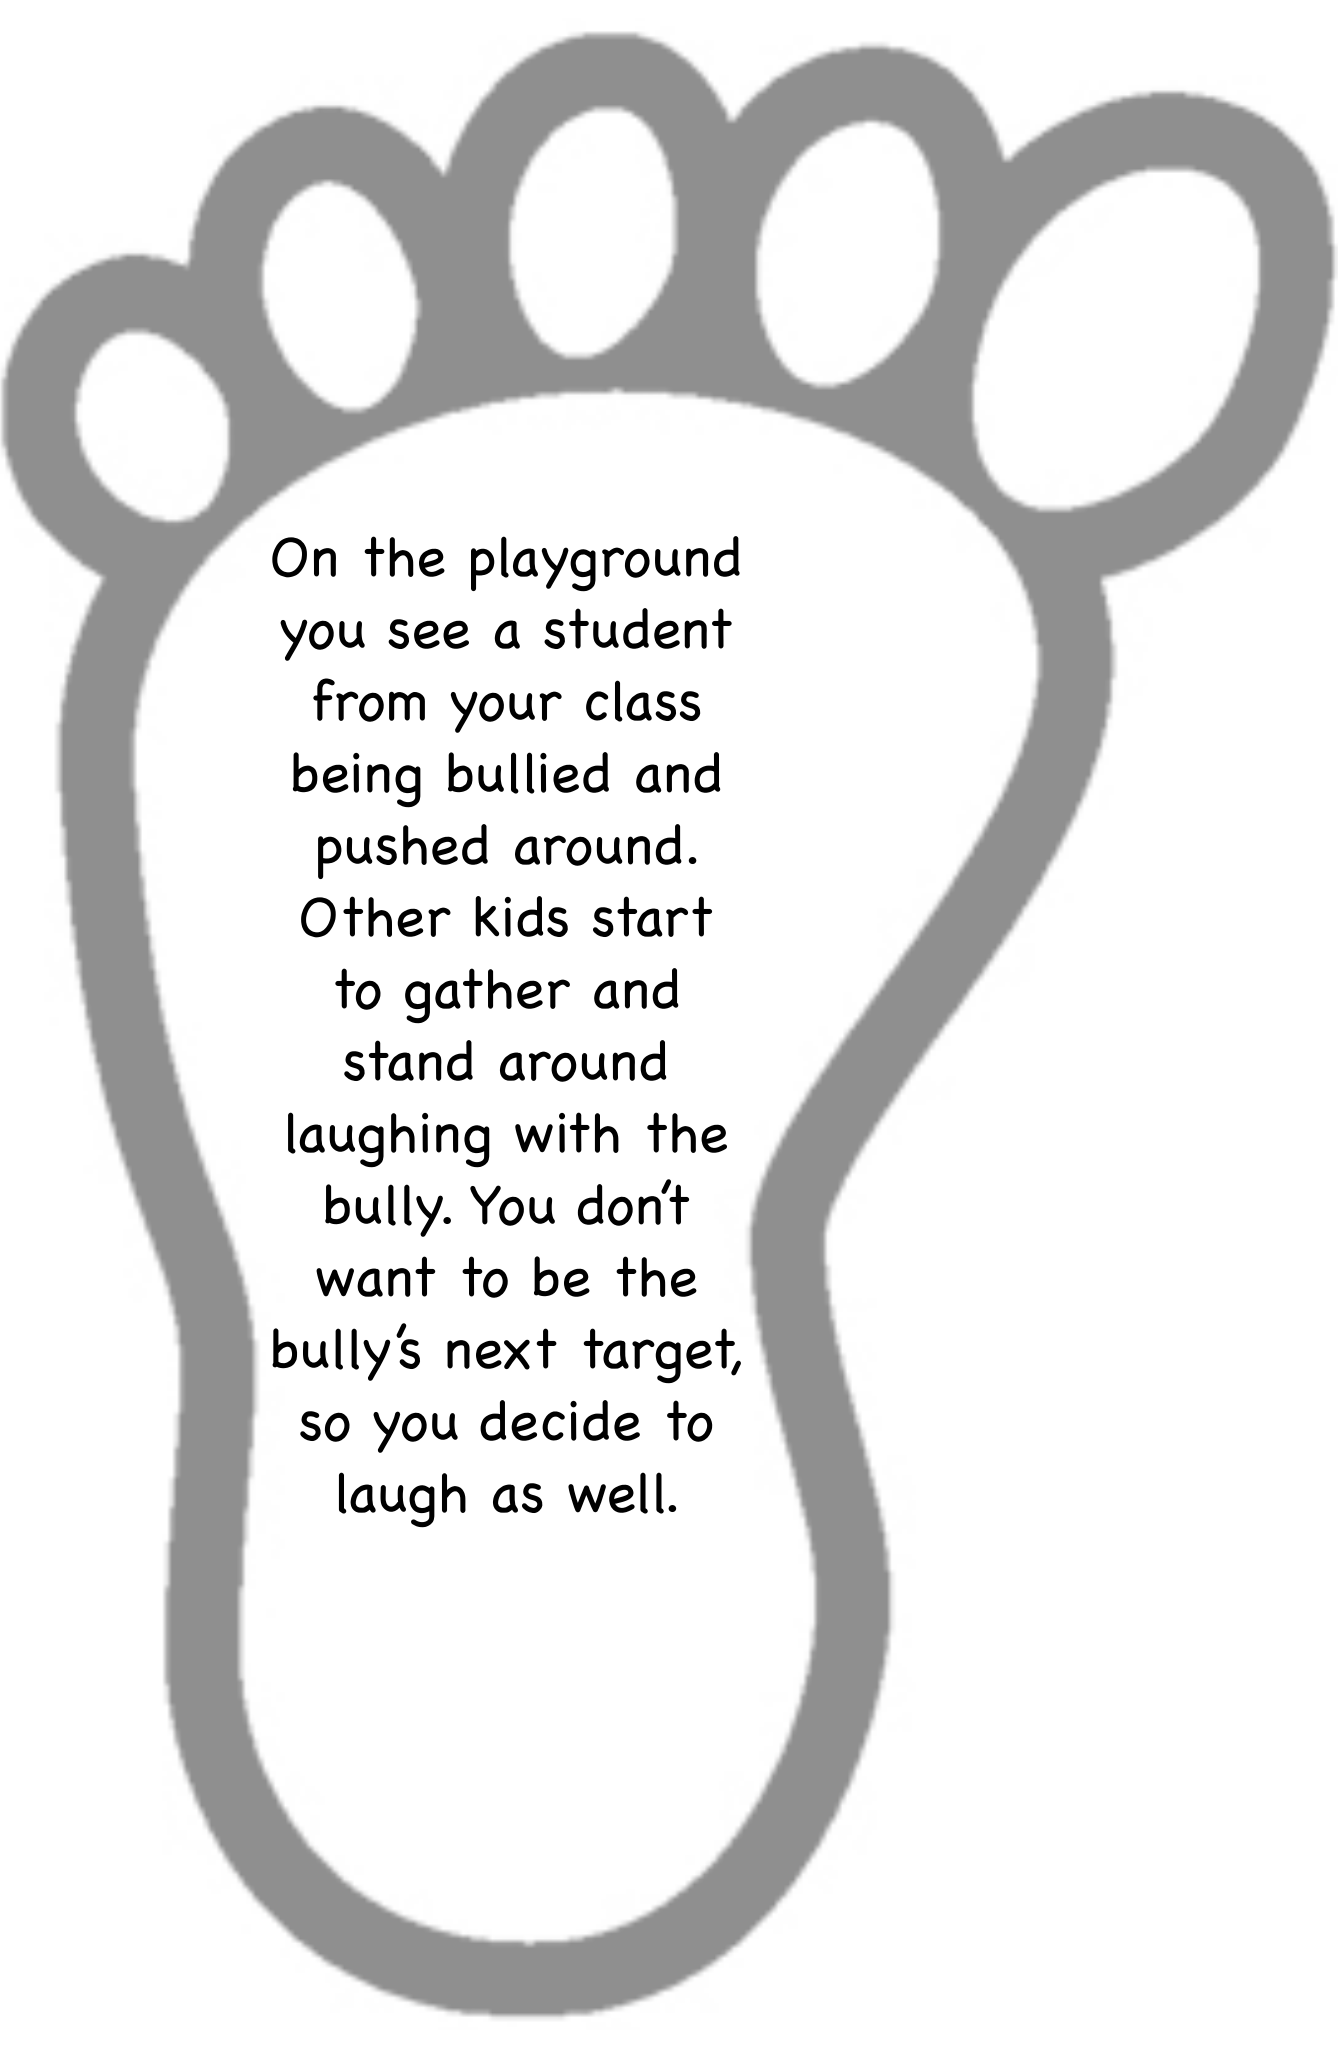

While hanging out at a friend's house, your friend's older brother offers you something to smoke. You know smoking is bad for you, but you don't want to look like a baby. You decide to take a smoke.

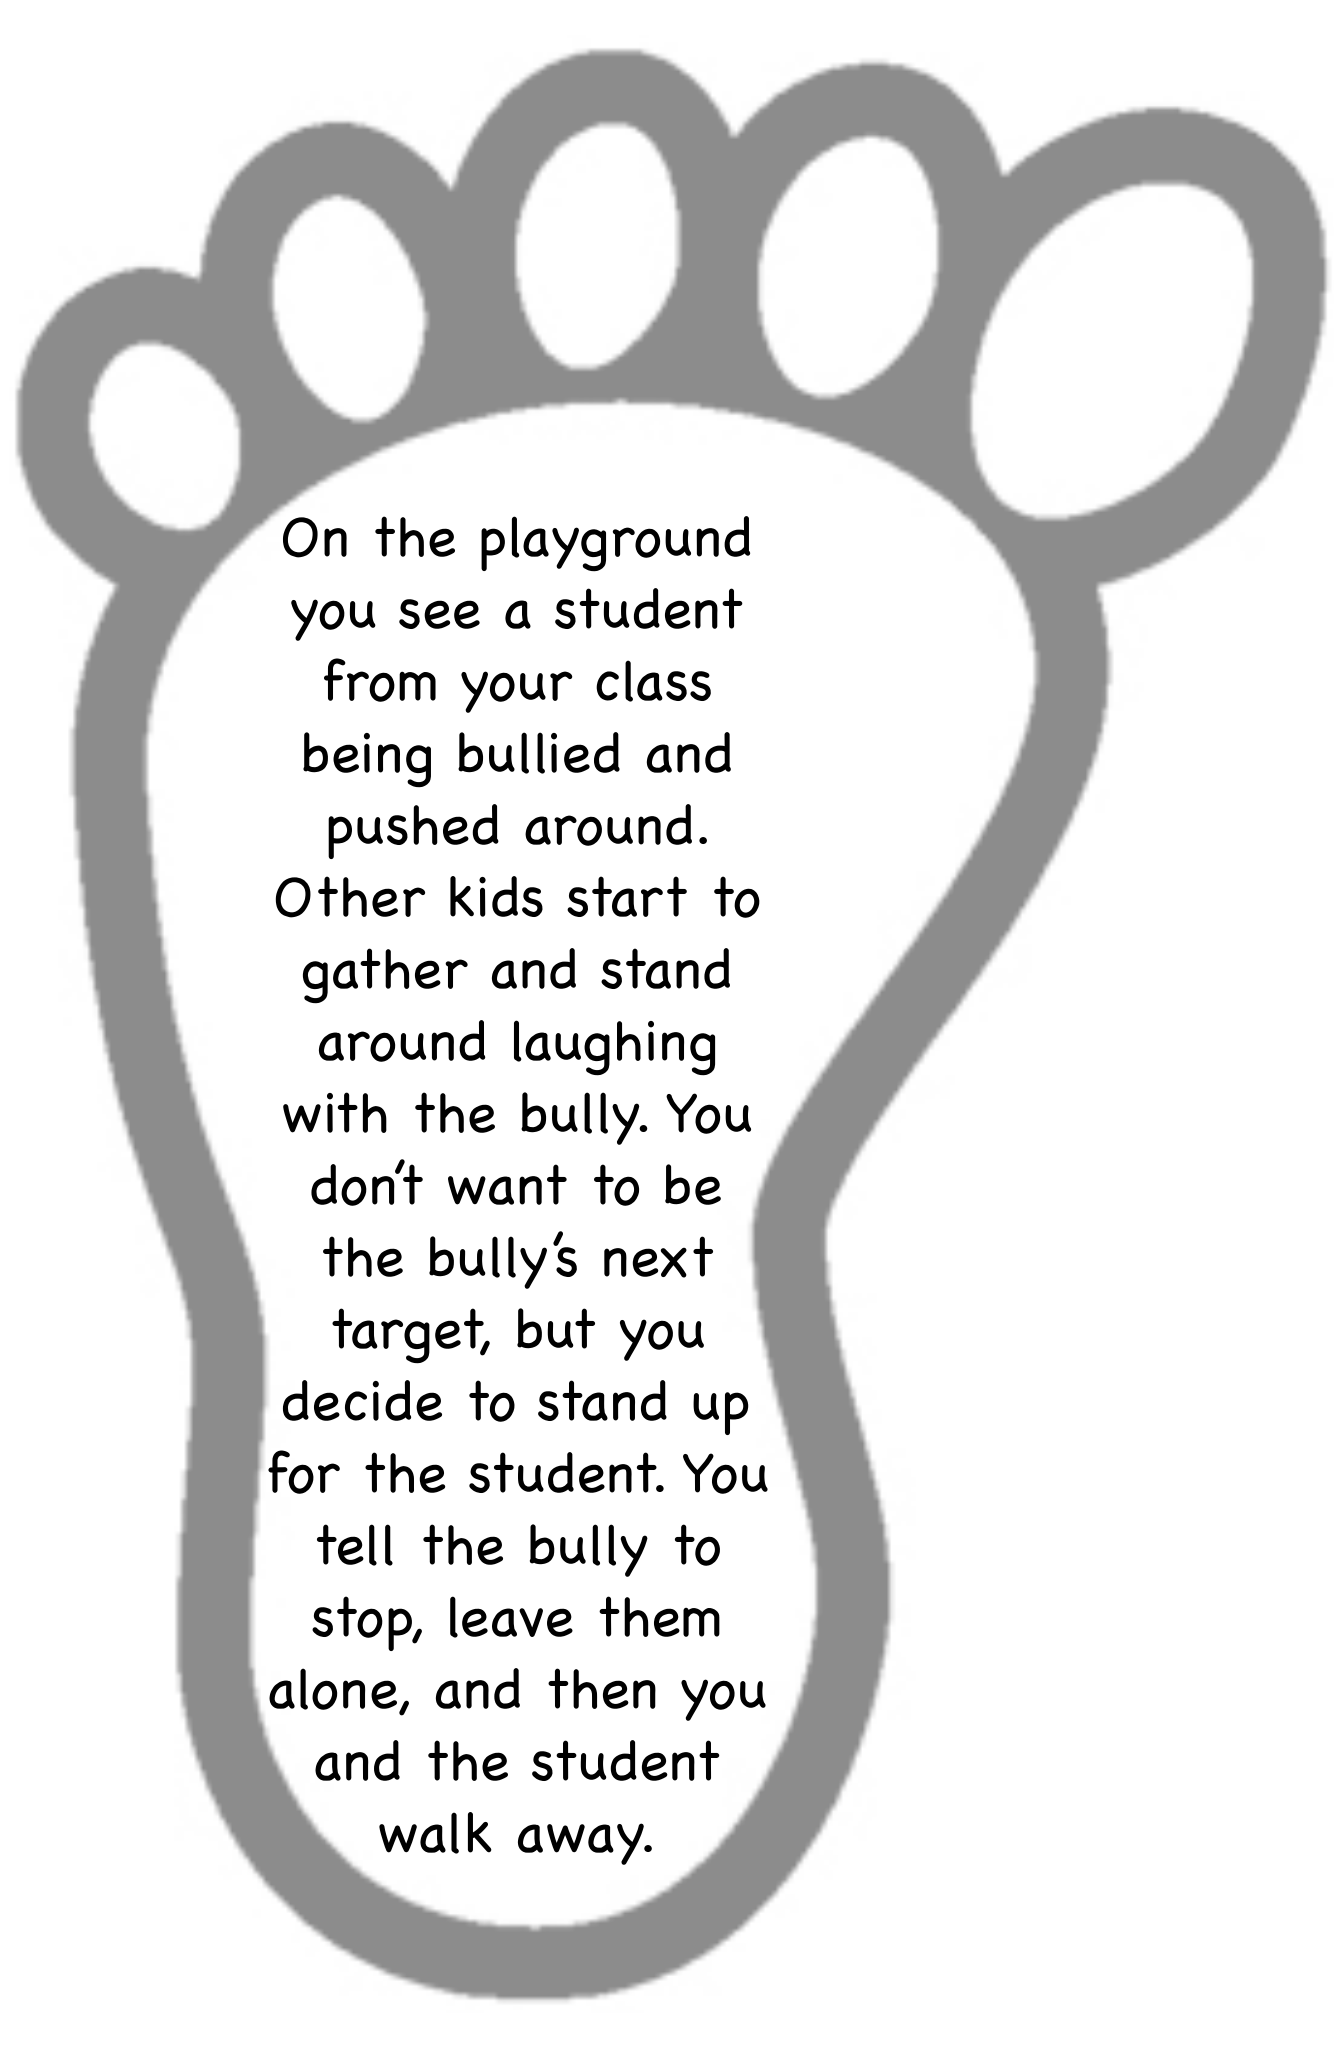

It is more important to worry about what other people think about you.

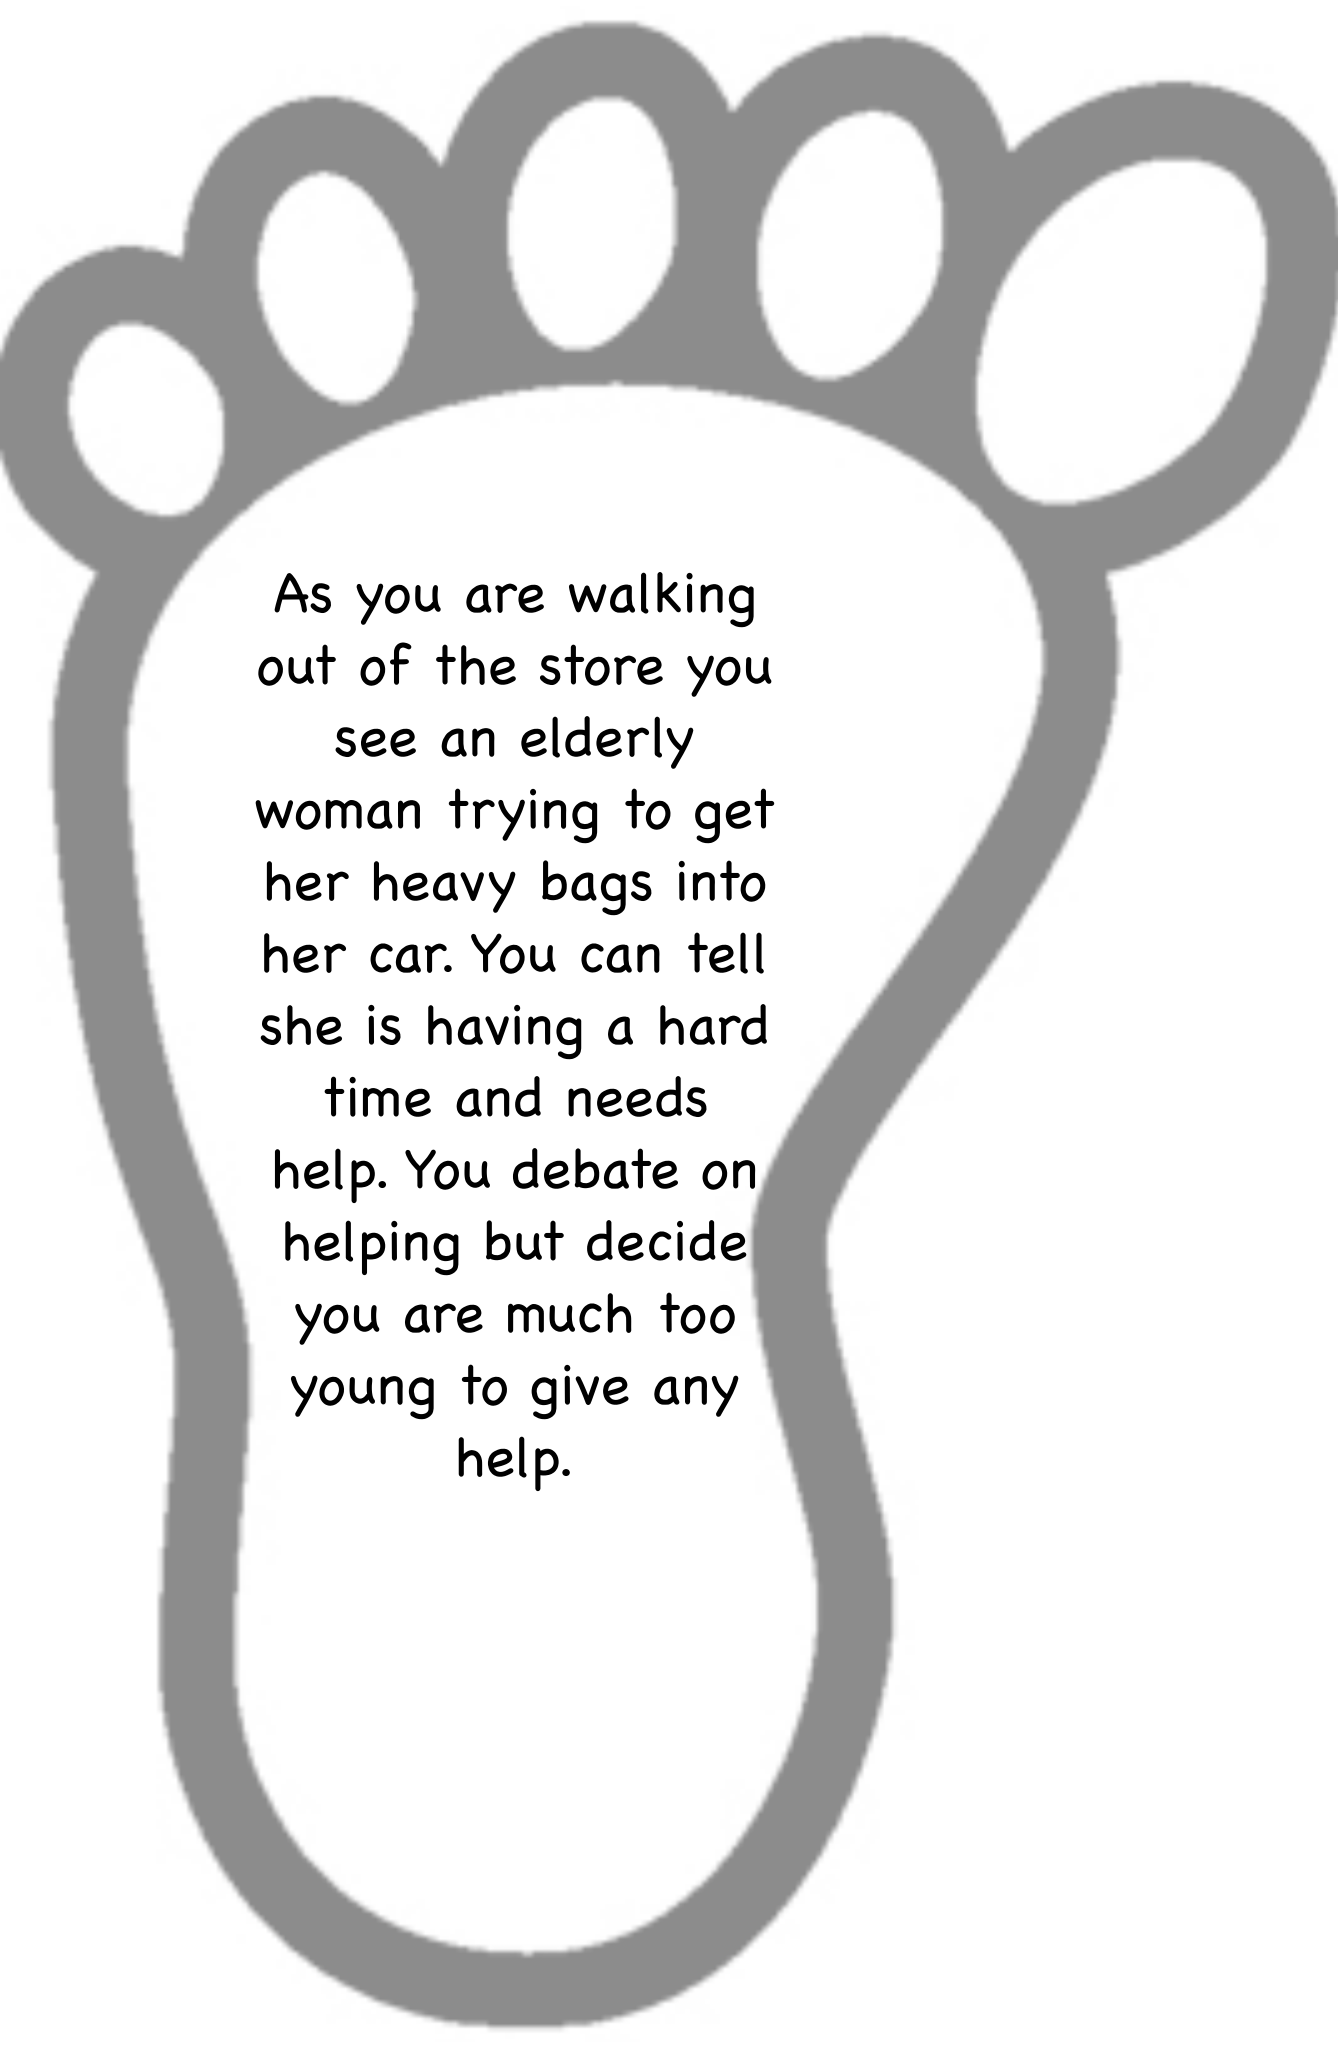

While hanging out at a friend's house, your friend's older brother offers you something to smoke. You know smoking is bad for you, but you don't want to look like a baby. You decide not to smoke. Instead, you say your mom needs you to come home, and you leave. It is more important to keep your body clean.

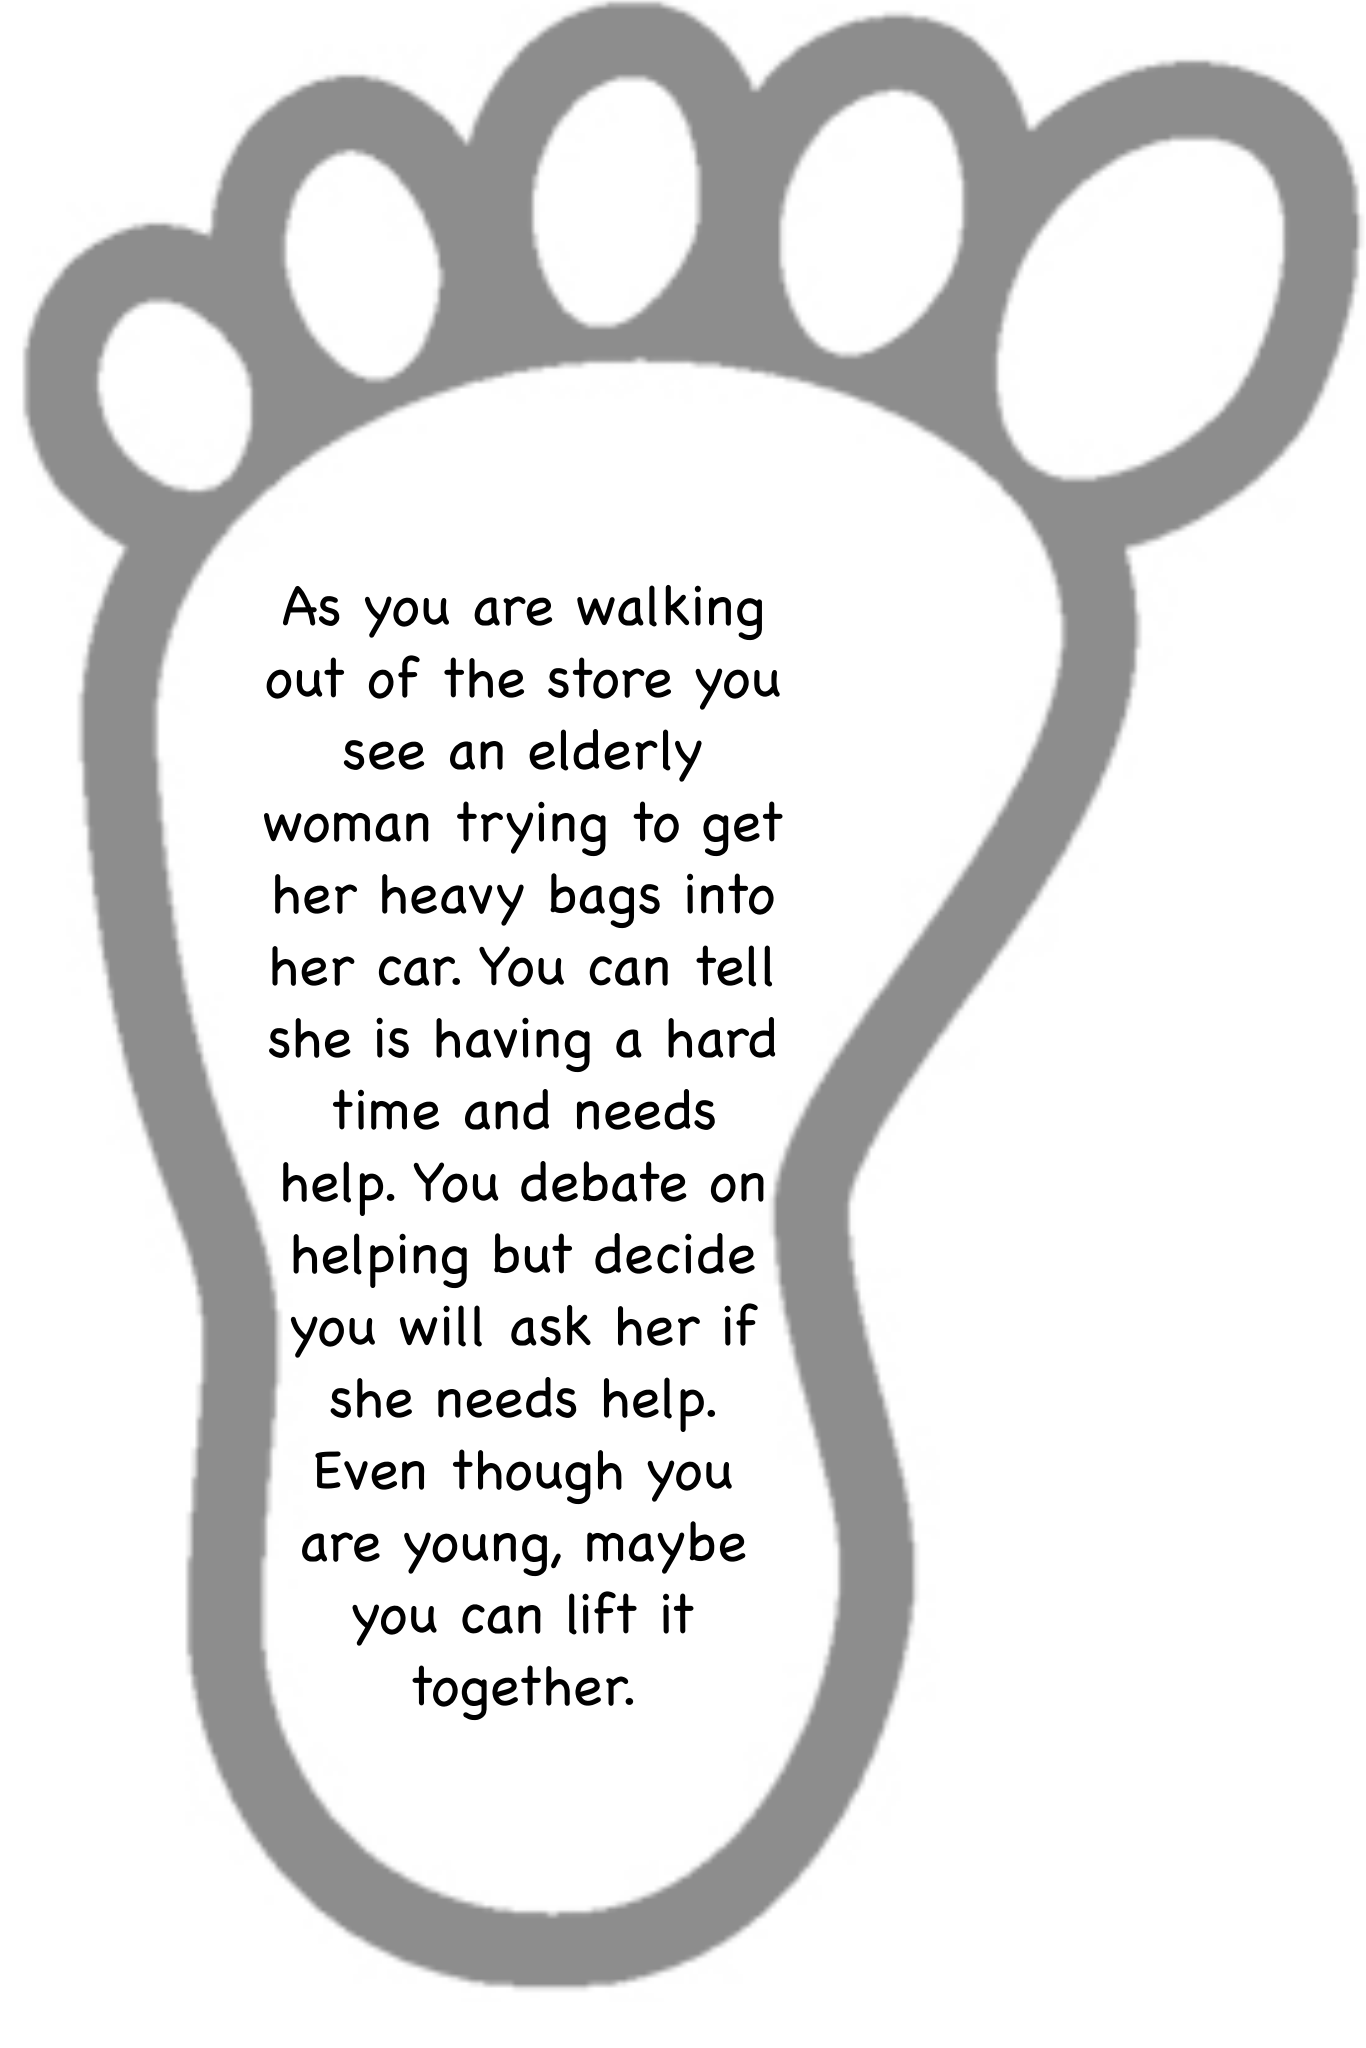

On the playground you see a student from your class being bullied and pushed around. Other kids start to gather and stand around laughing with the bully. You don't want to be the bully's next target, so you decide to laugh as well.

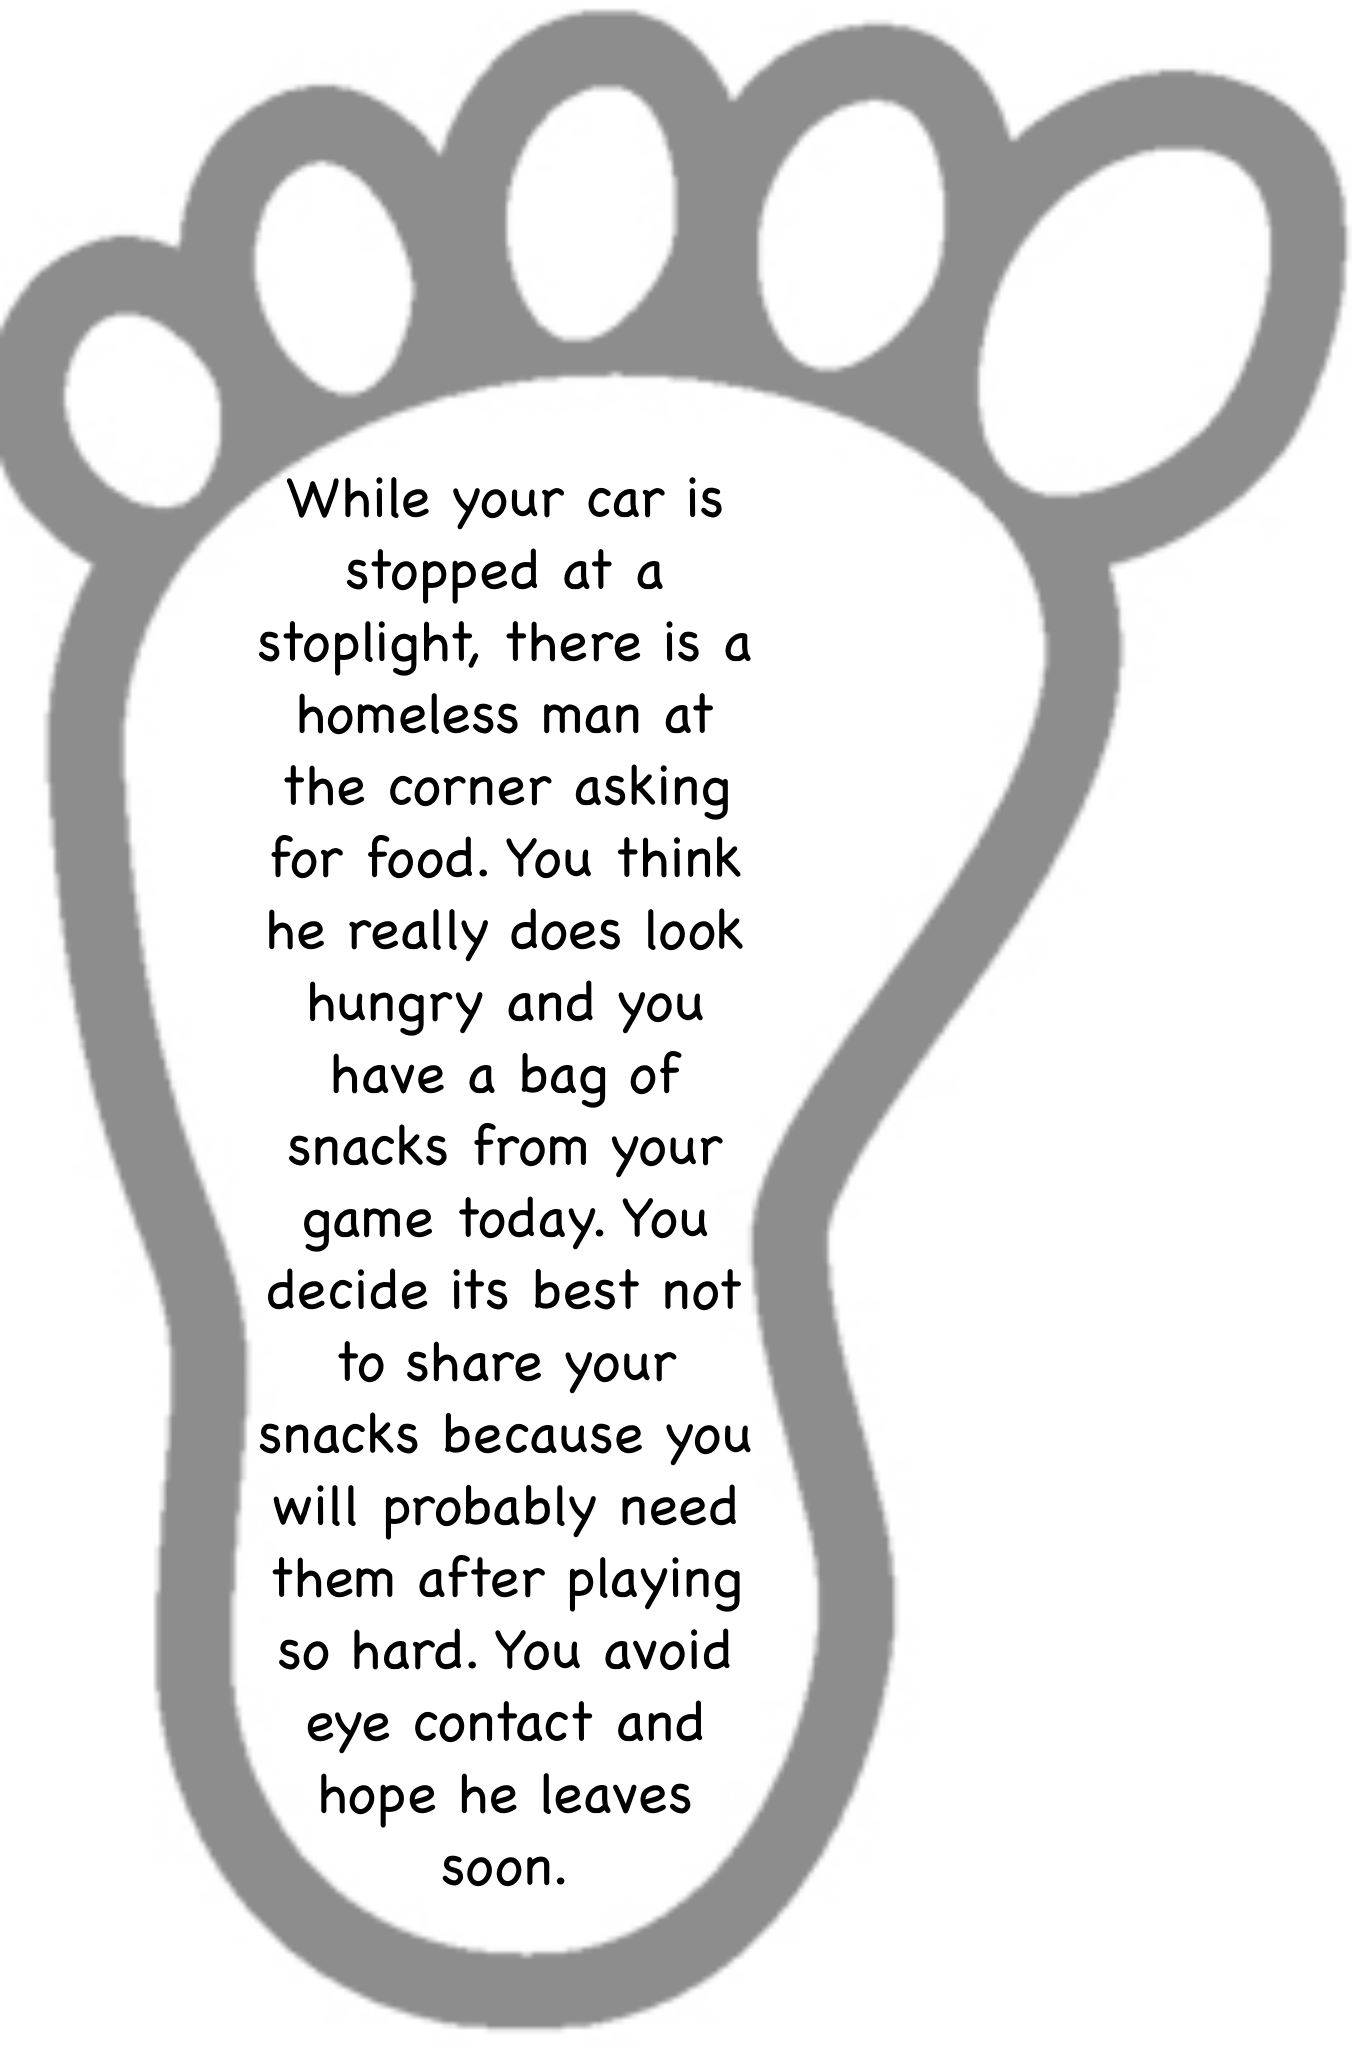

On the playground you see a student from your class being bullied and pushed around. Other kids start to gather and stand around laughing with the bully. You don't want to be the bully's next target, but you decide to stand up for the student. You tell the bully to stop, leave them alone, and then you and the student walk away.

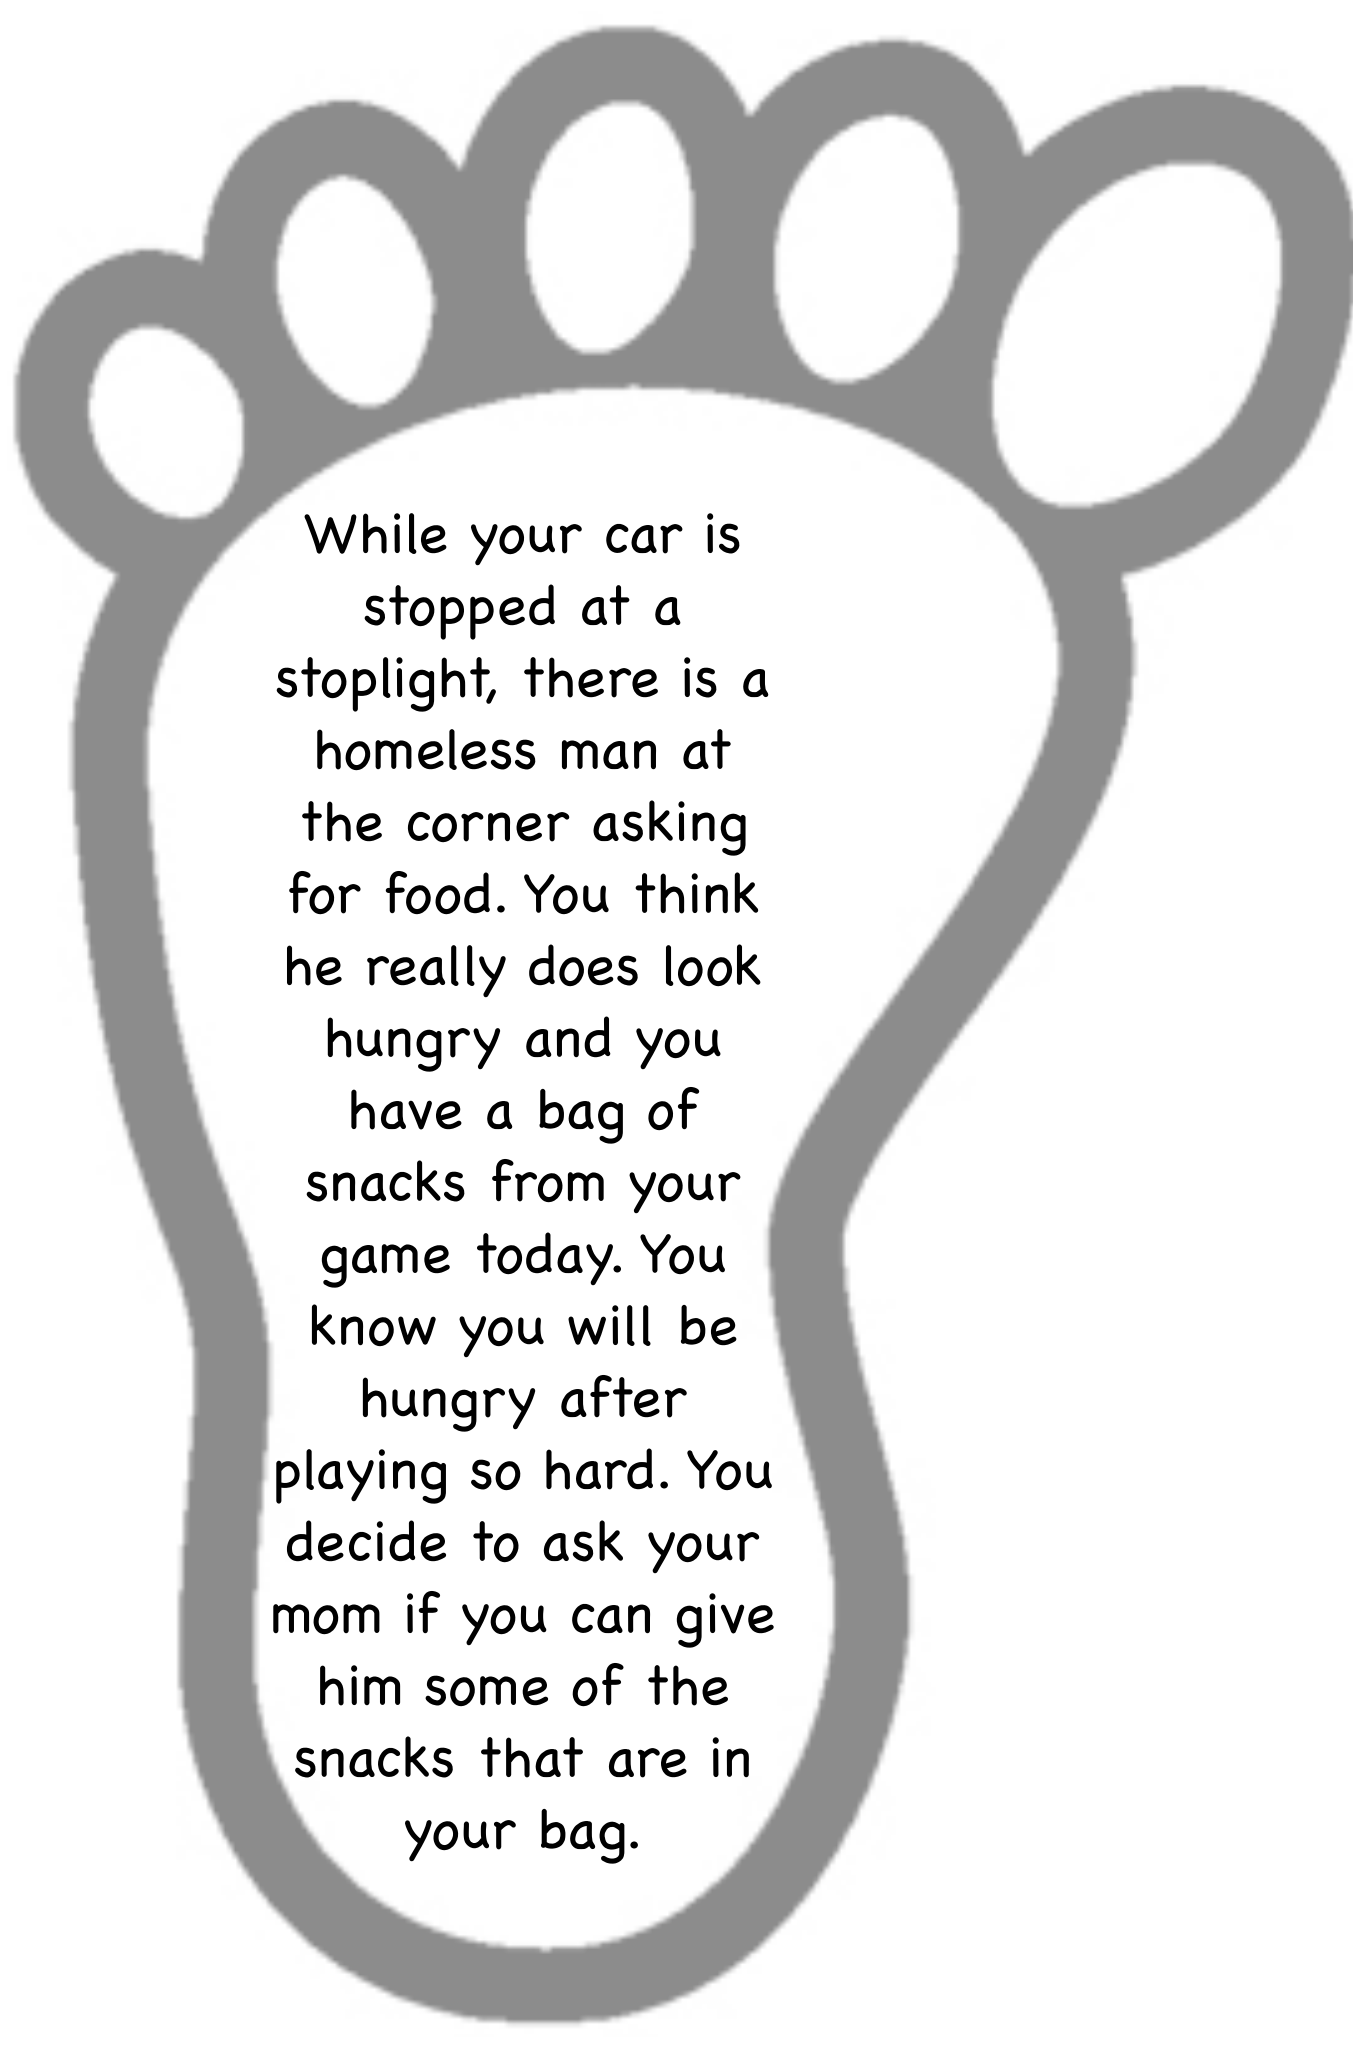

As you are walking out of the store you see an elderly woman trying to get her heavy bags into her car. You can tell she is having a hard time and needs help. You debate on helping but decide you are much too young to give any help.

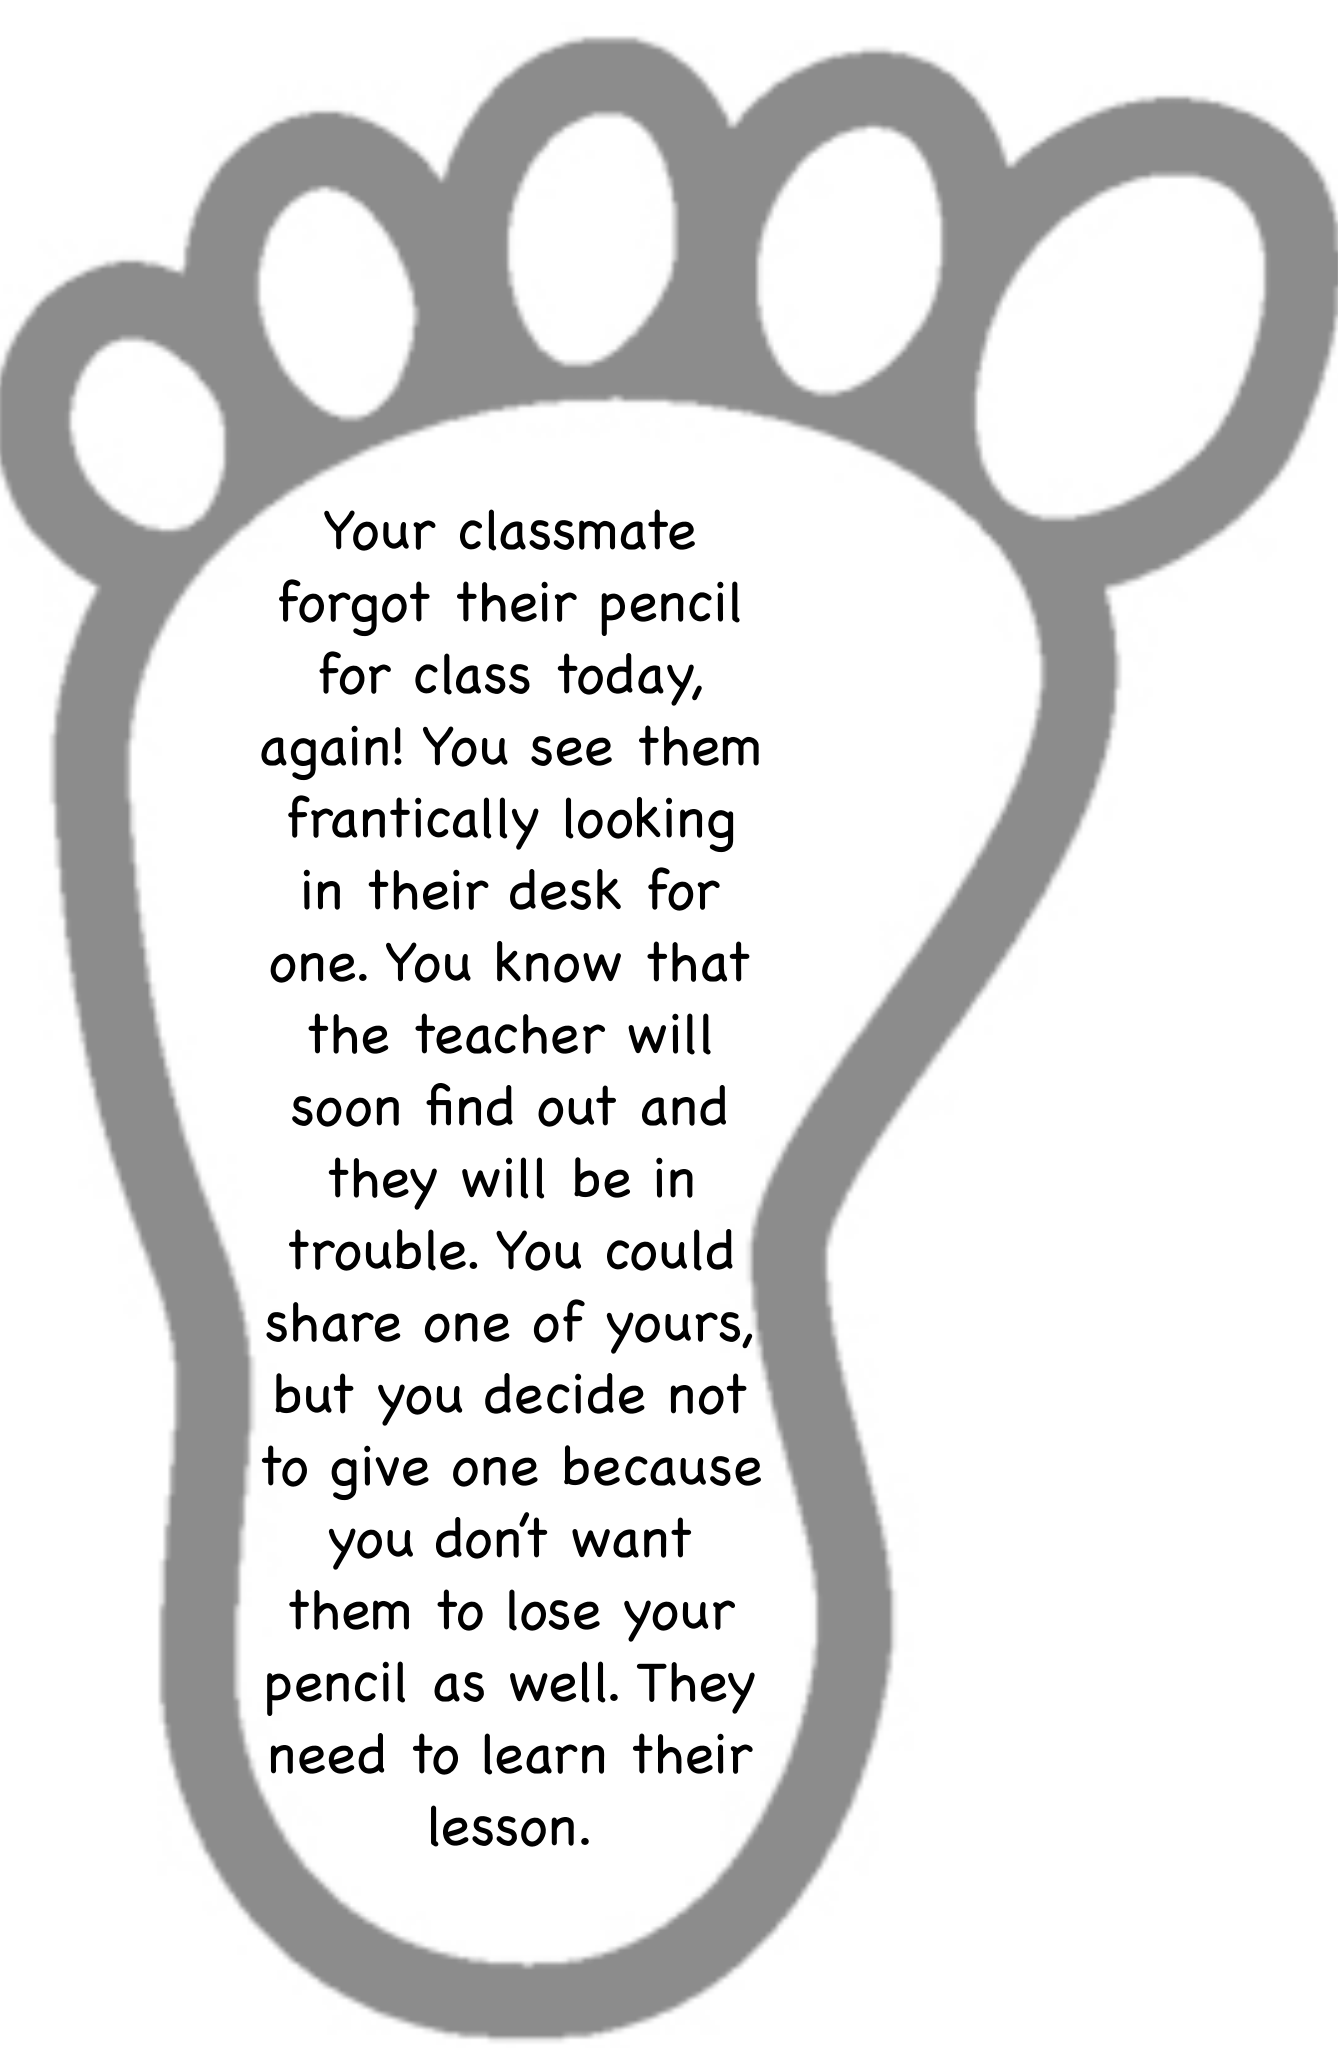

As you are walking out of the store you see an elderly woman trying to get her heavy bags into her car. You can tell she is having a hard time and needs help. You debate on helping but decide you will ask her if she needs help. Even though you are young, maybe you can lift it together.

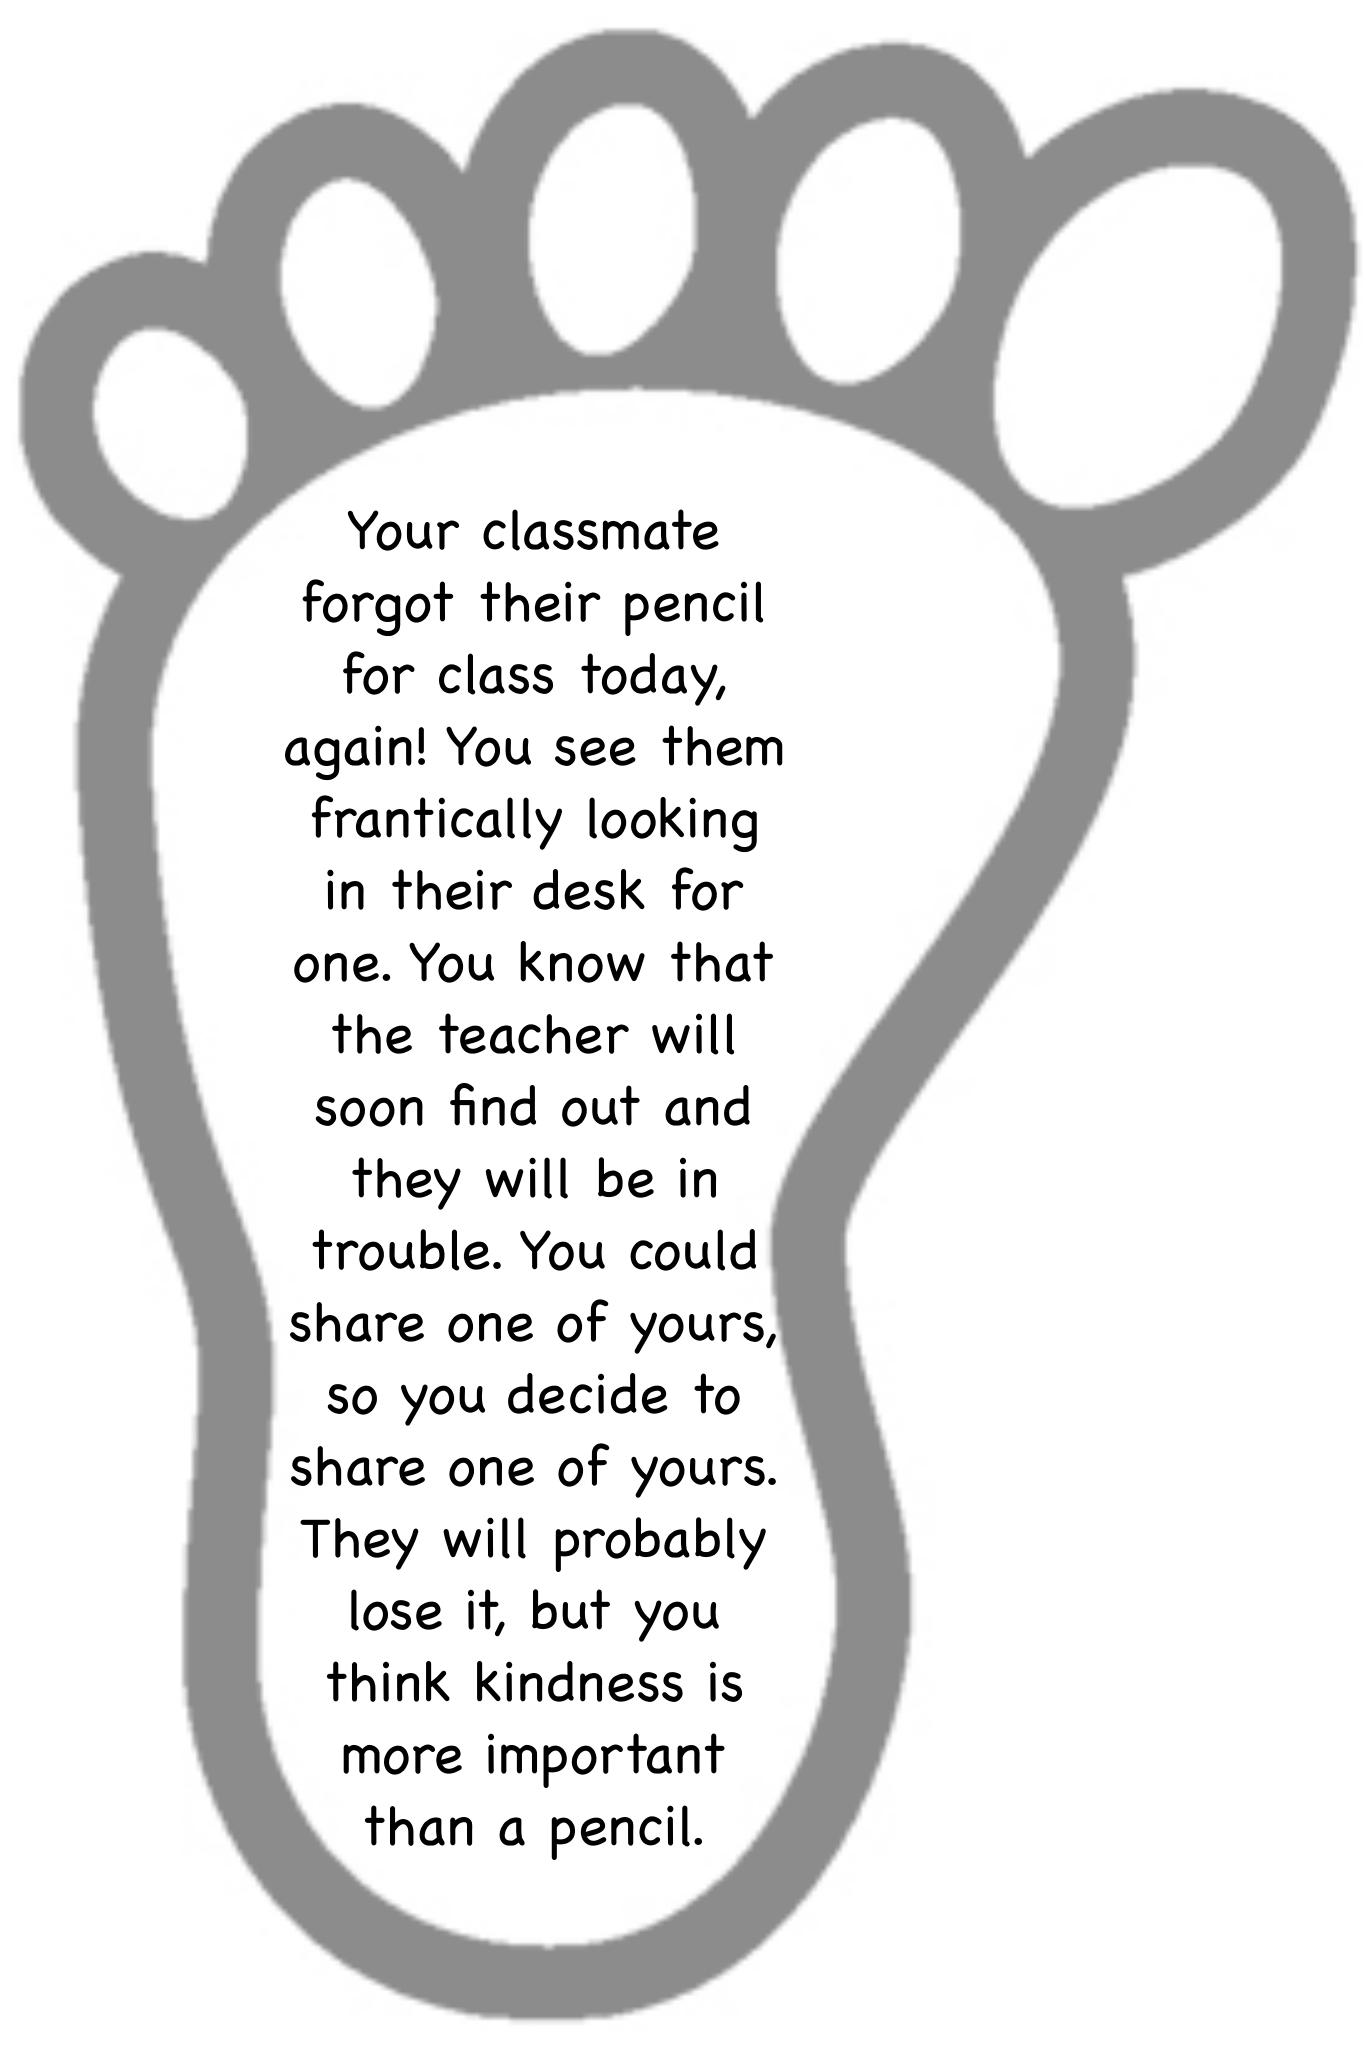

While your car is stopped at a stoplight, there is a homeless man at the corner asking for food. You think he really does look hungry and you have a bag of snacks from your game today. You decide its best not to share your snacks because you will probably need them after playing so hard. You avoid eye contact and hope he leaves soon.

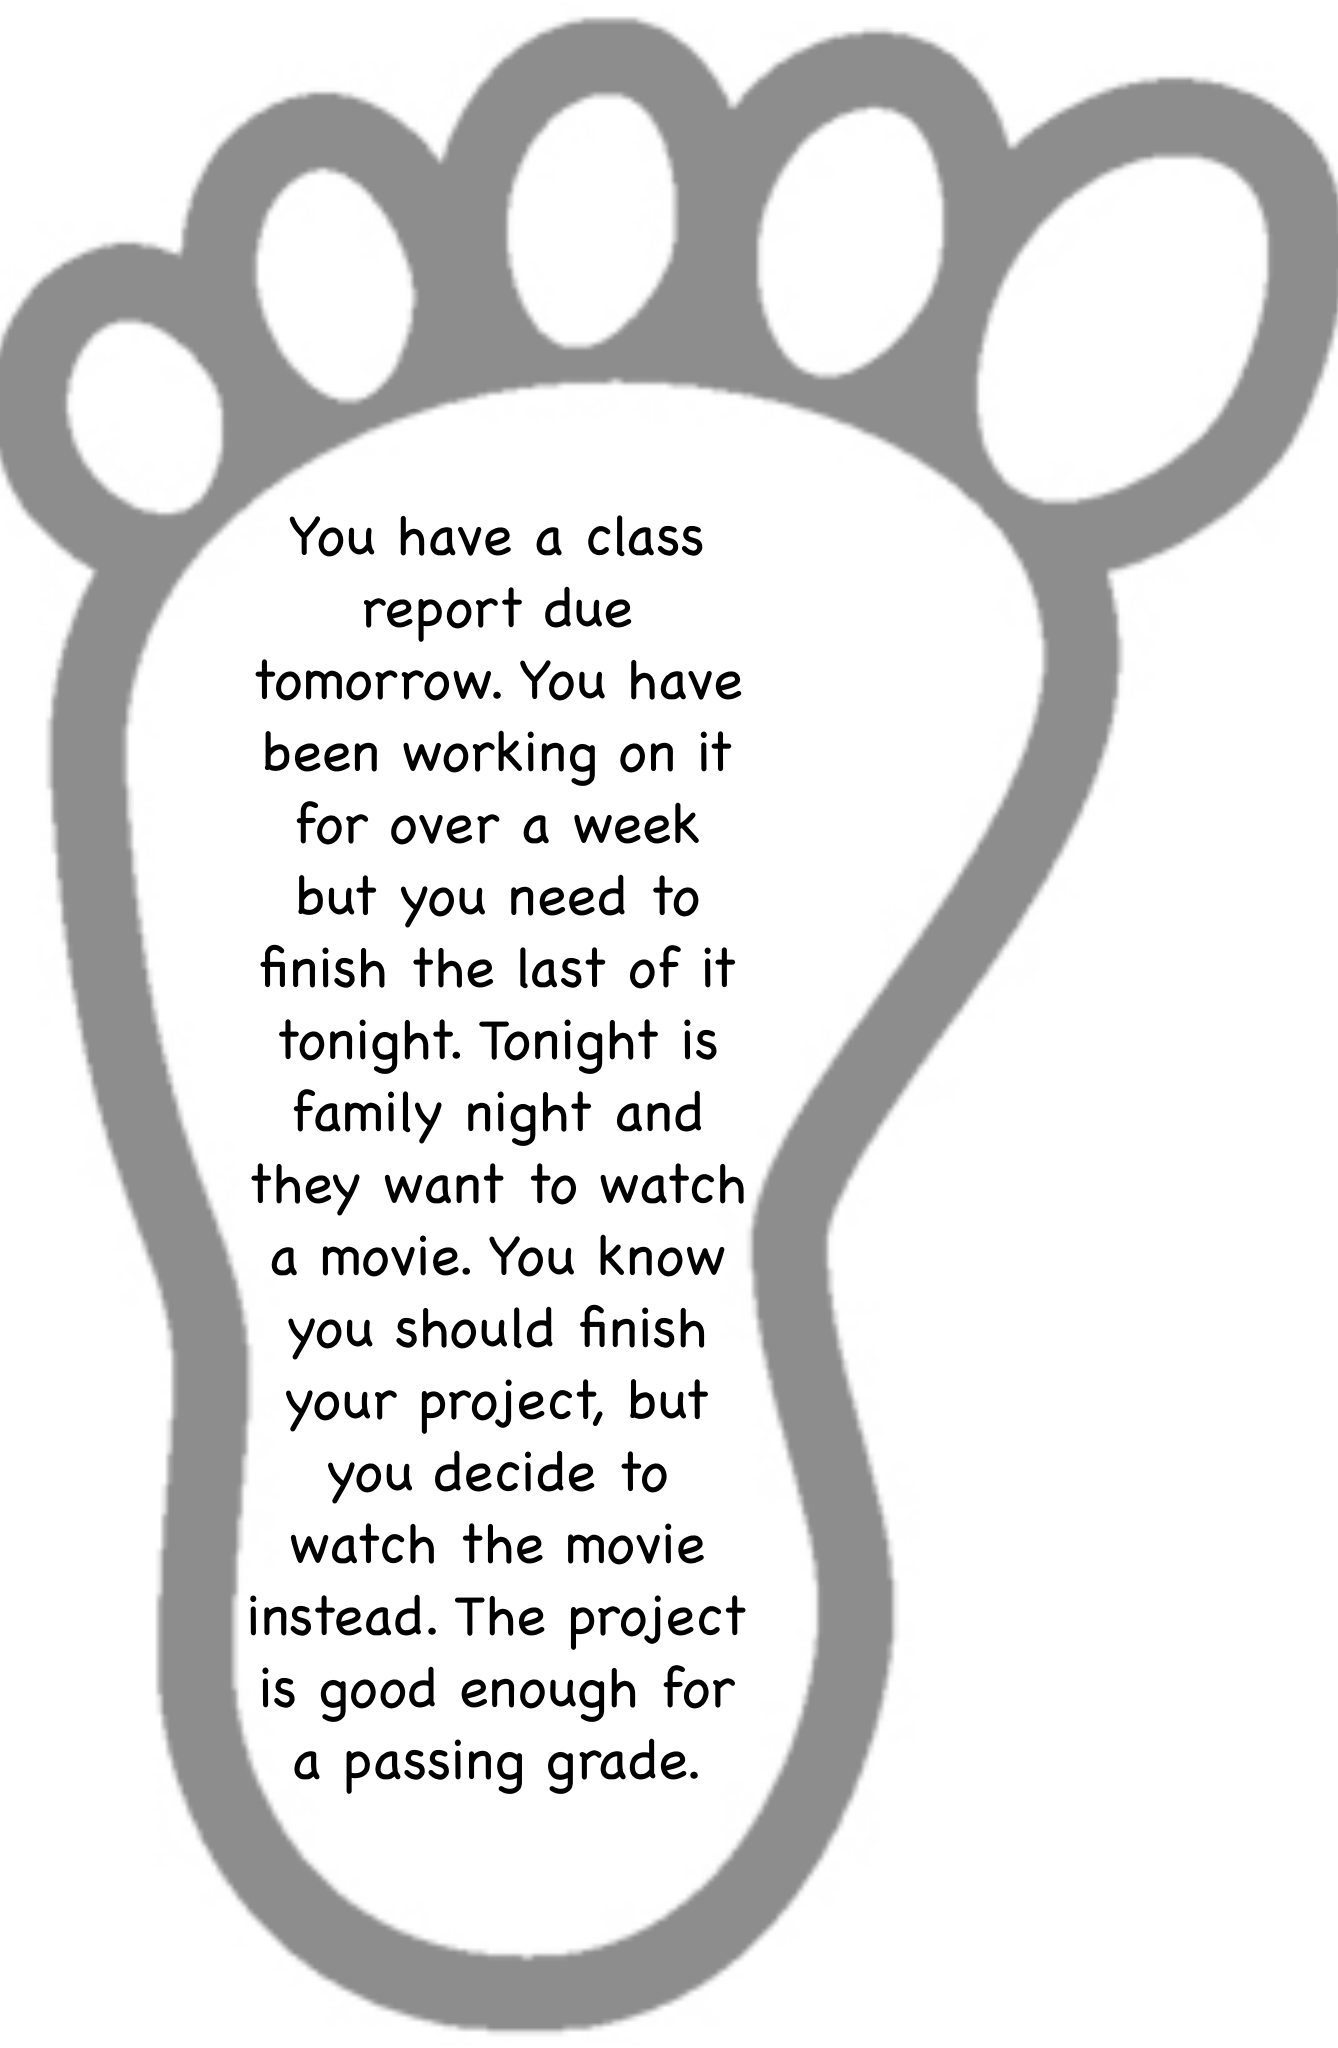

While your car is stopped at a stoplight, there is a homeless man at the corner asking for food. You think he really does look hungry and you have a bag of snacks from your game today. You know you will be hungry after playing so hard. You decide to ask your mom if you can give him some of the snacks that are in your bag.

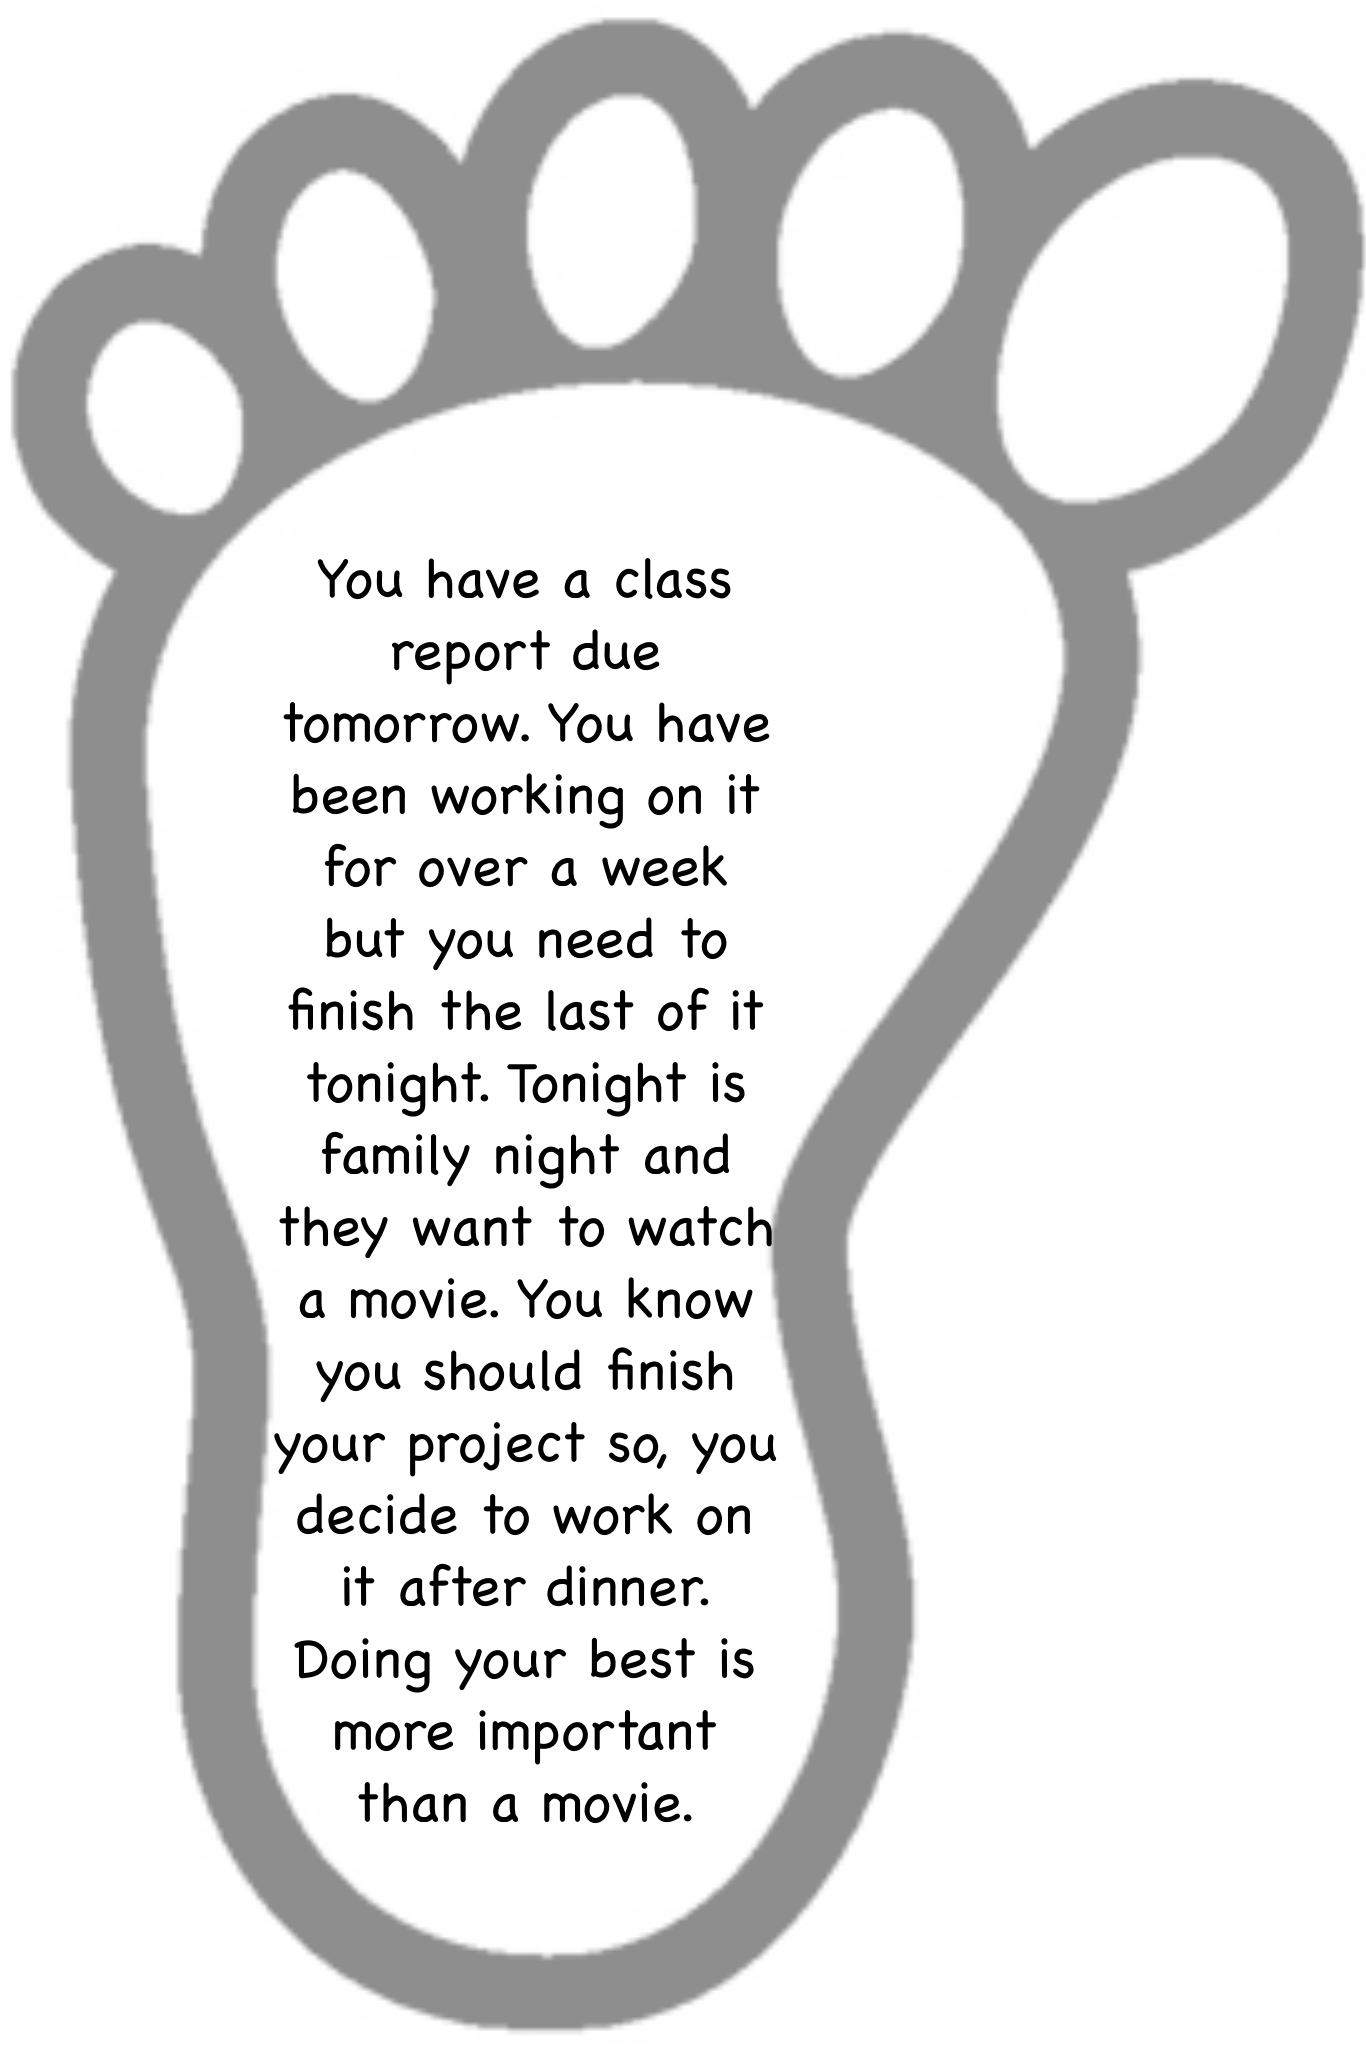

Your classmate forgot their pencil for class today, again! You see them frantically looking in their desk for one. You know that the teacher will soon find out and they will be in trouble. You could share one of yours, but you decide not to give one because you don't want them to lose your pencil as well. They need to learn their lesson.

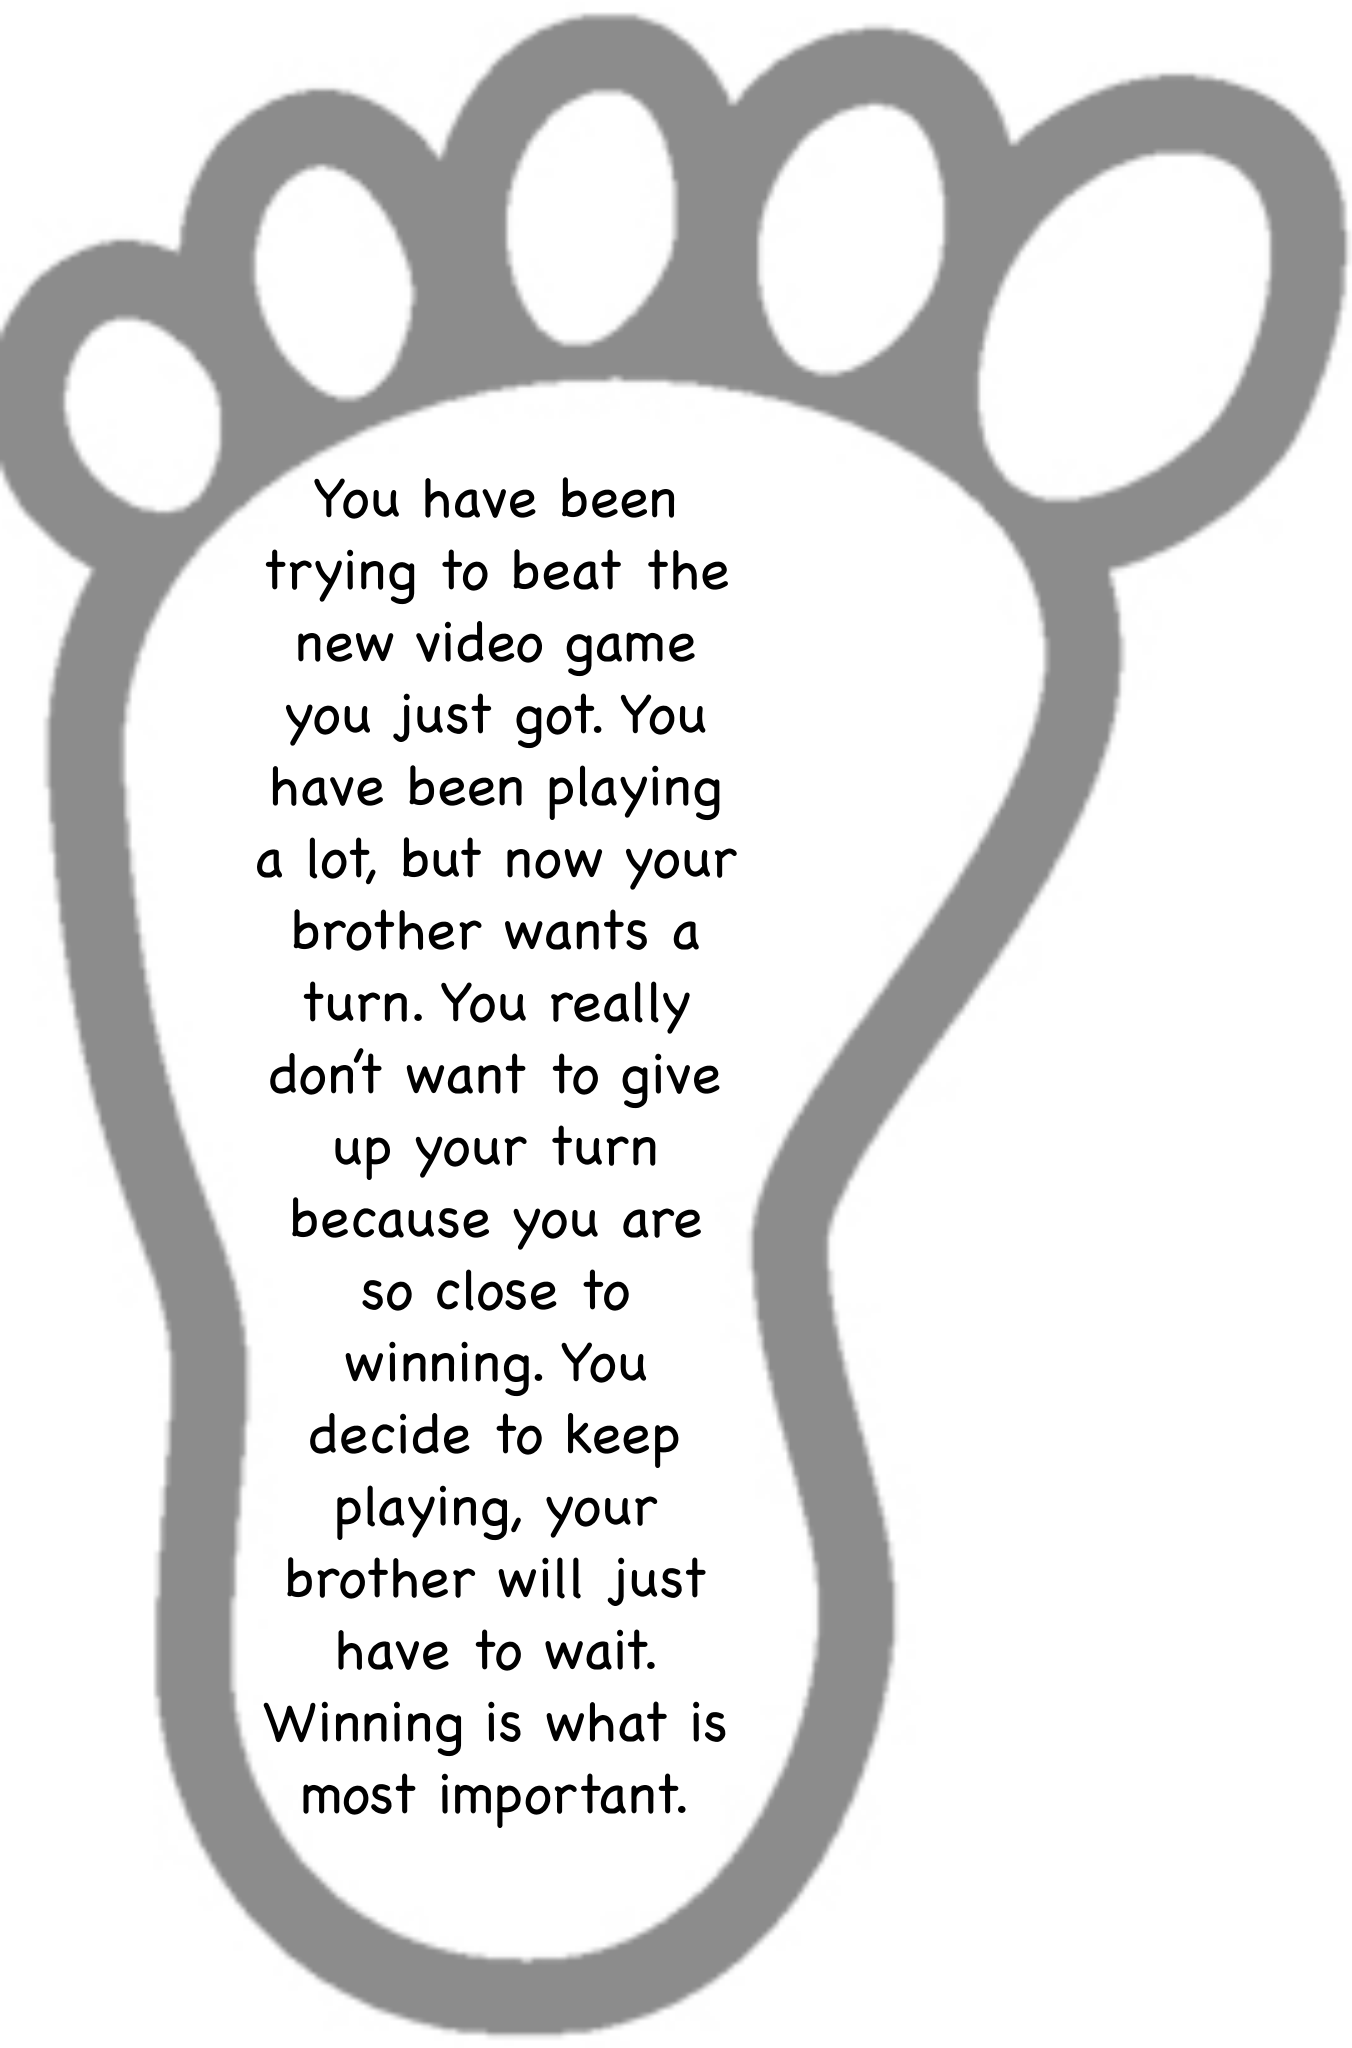

Your classmate forgot their pencil for class today, again! You see them frantically looking in their desk for one. You know that the teacher will soon find out and they will be in trouble. You could share one of yours, so you decide to share one of yours. They will probably lose it, but you think kindness is more important than a pencil.

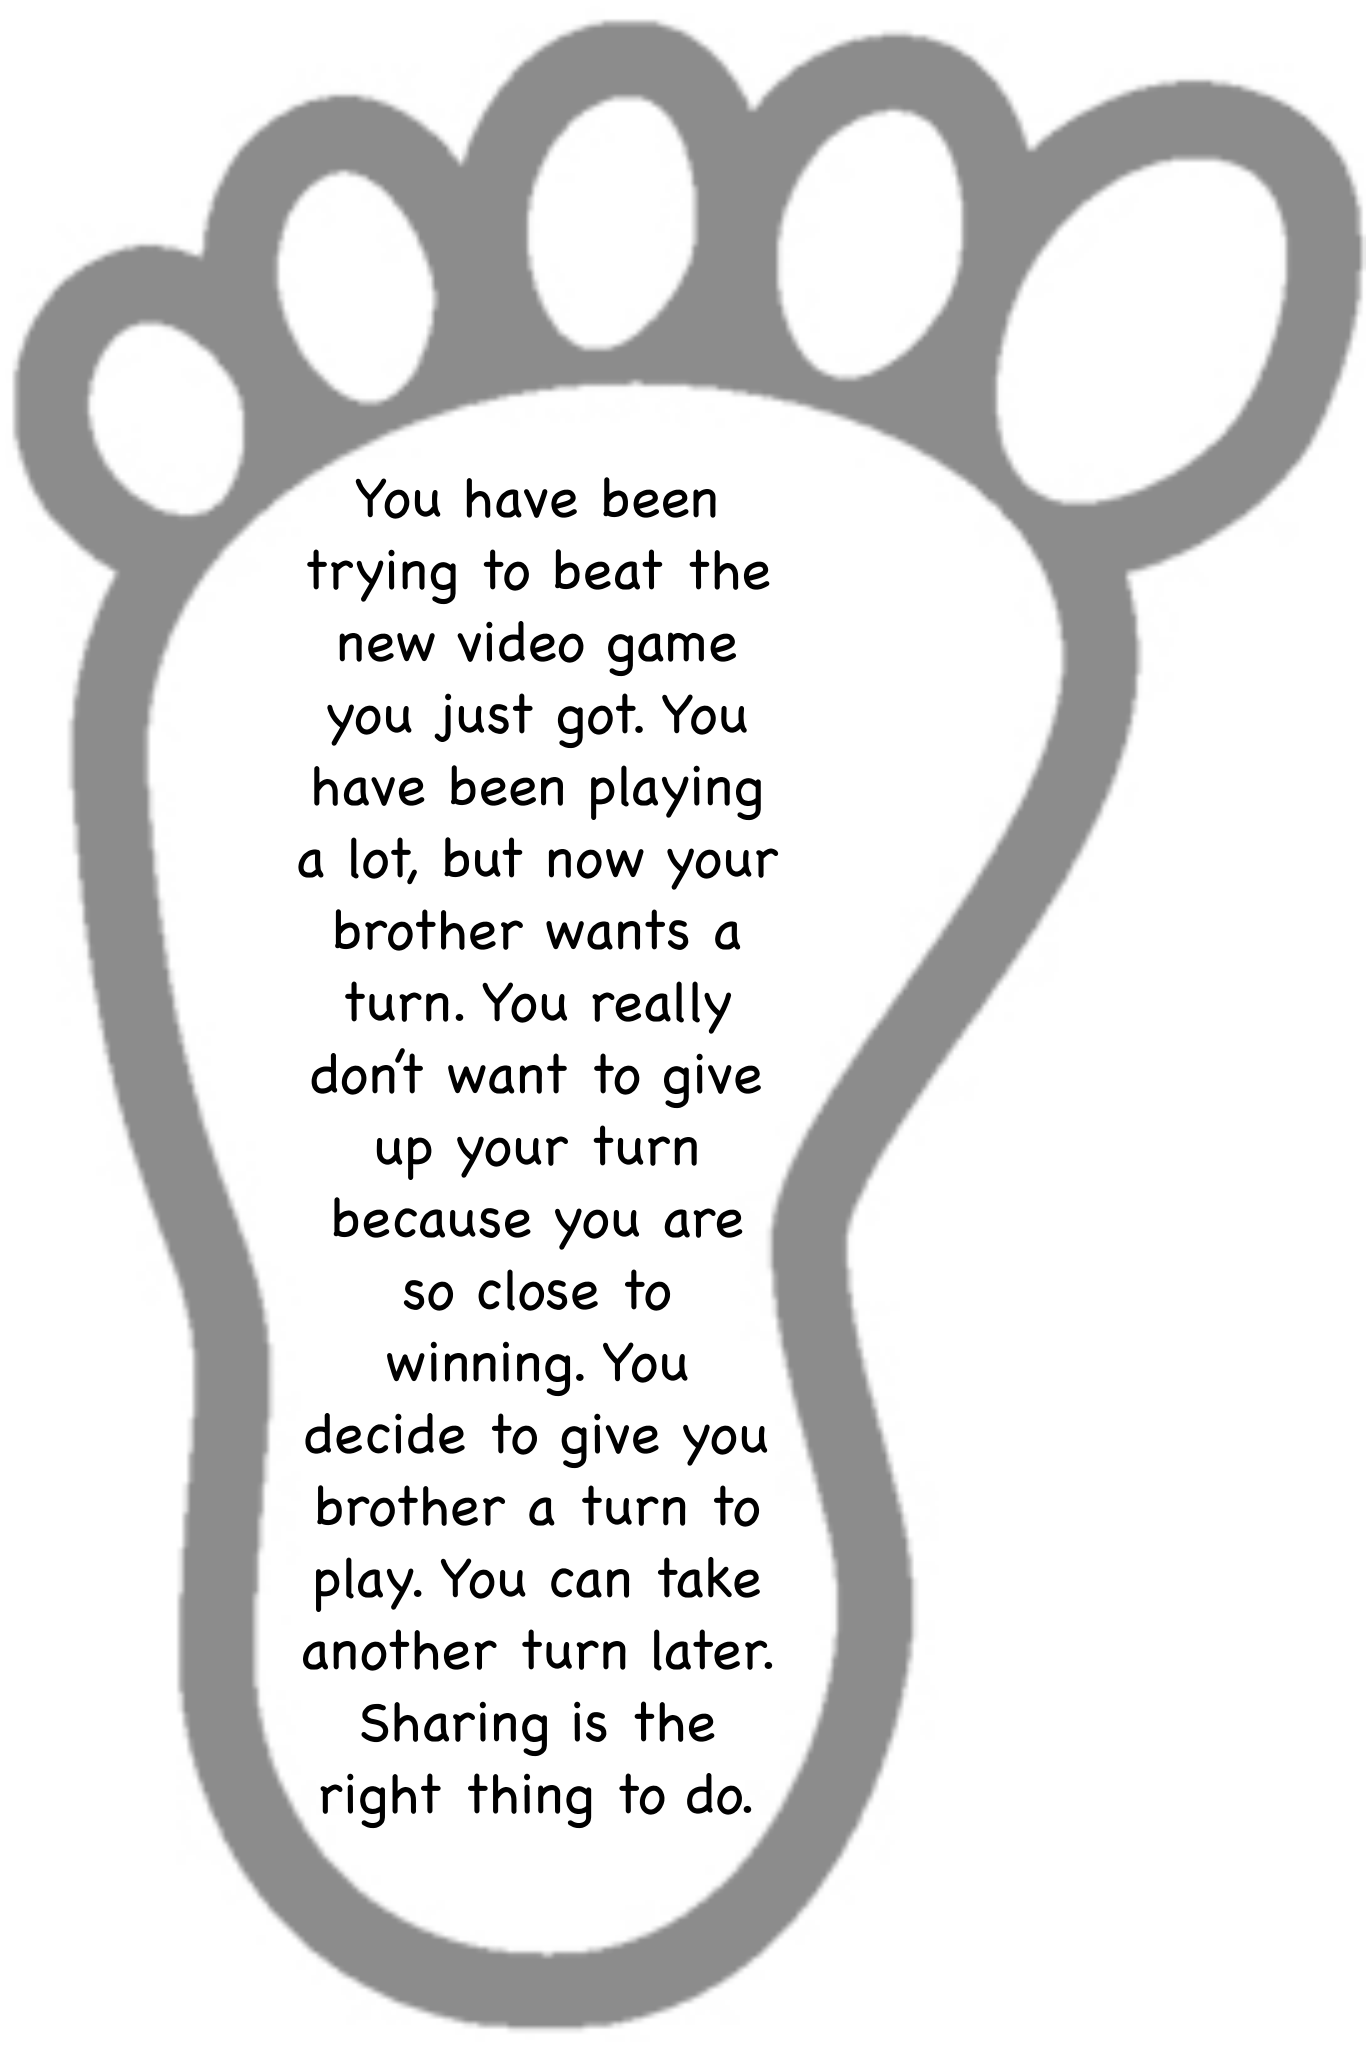

You have a class report due tomorrow. You have been working on it for over a week but you need to finish the last of it tonight. Tonight is family night and they want to watch a movie. You know you should finish your project, but you decide to watch the movie instead. The project is good enough for a passing grade.

You have a class report due tomorrow. You have been working on it for over a week but you need to finish the last of it tonight. Tonight is family night and they want to watch a movie. You know you should finish your project so, you decide to work on it after dinner. Doing your best is more important than a movie.

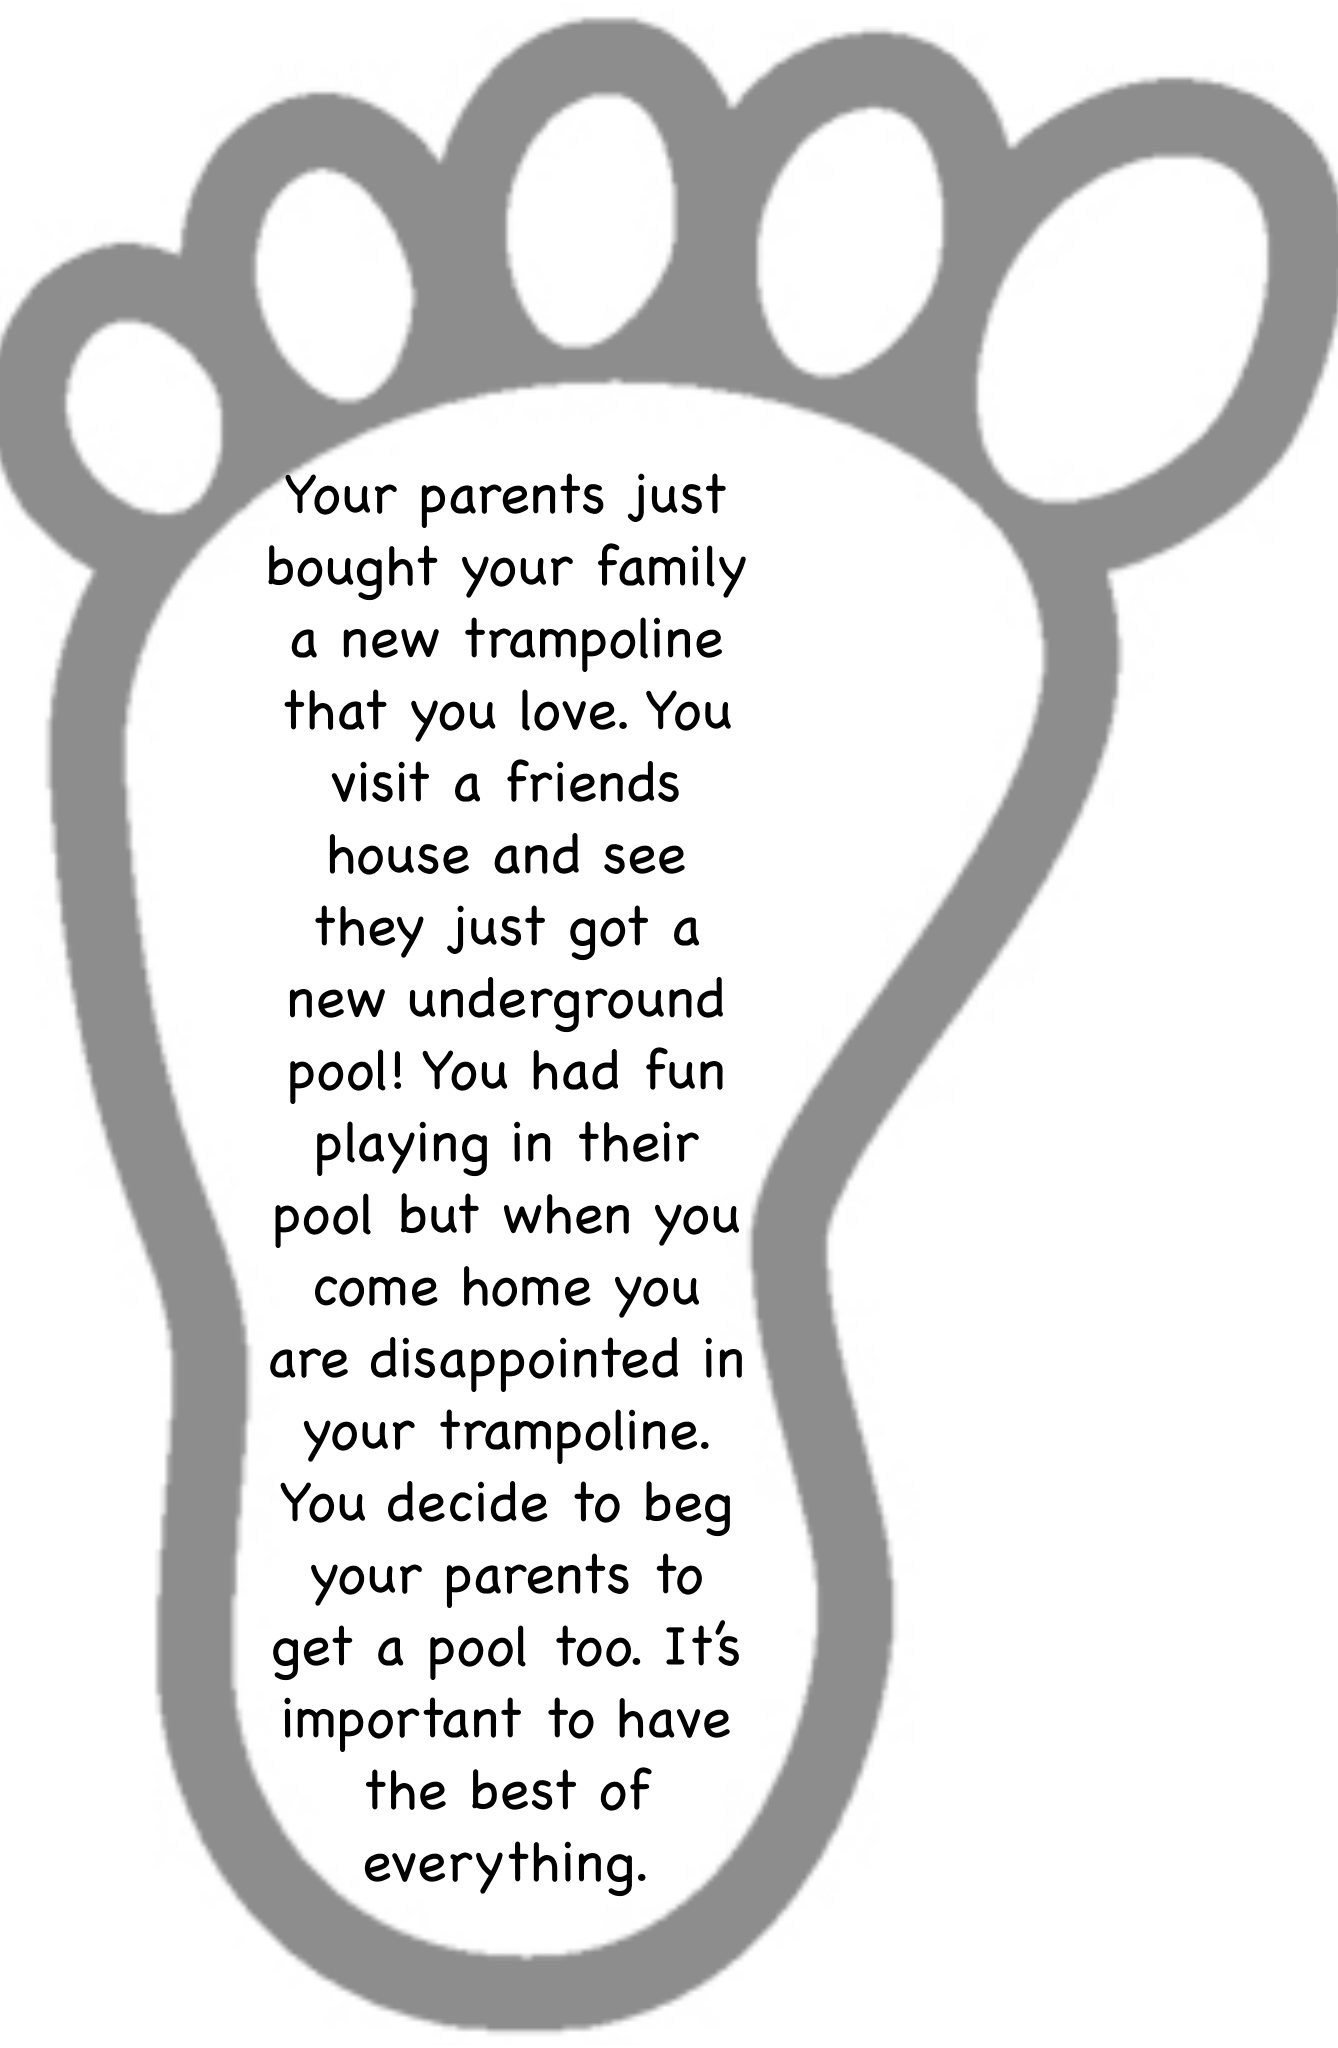

You have been trying to beat the new video game you just got. You have been playing a lot, but now your brother wants a turn. You really don't want to give up your turn because you are so close to winning. You decide to keep playing, your brother will just have to wait. Winning is what is most important.

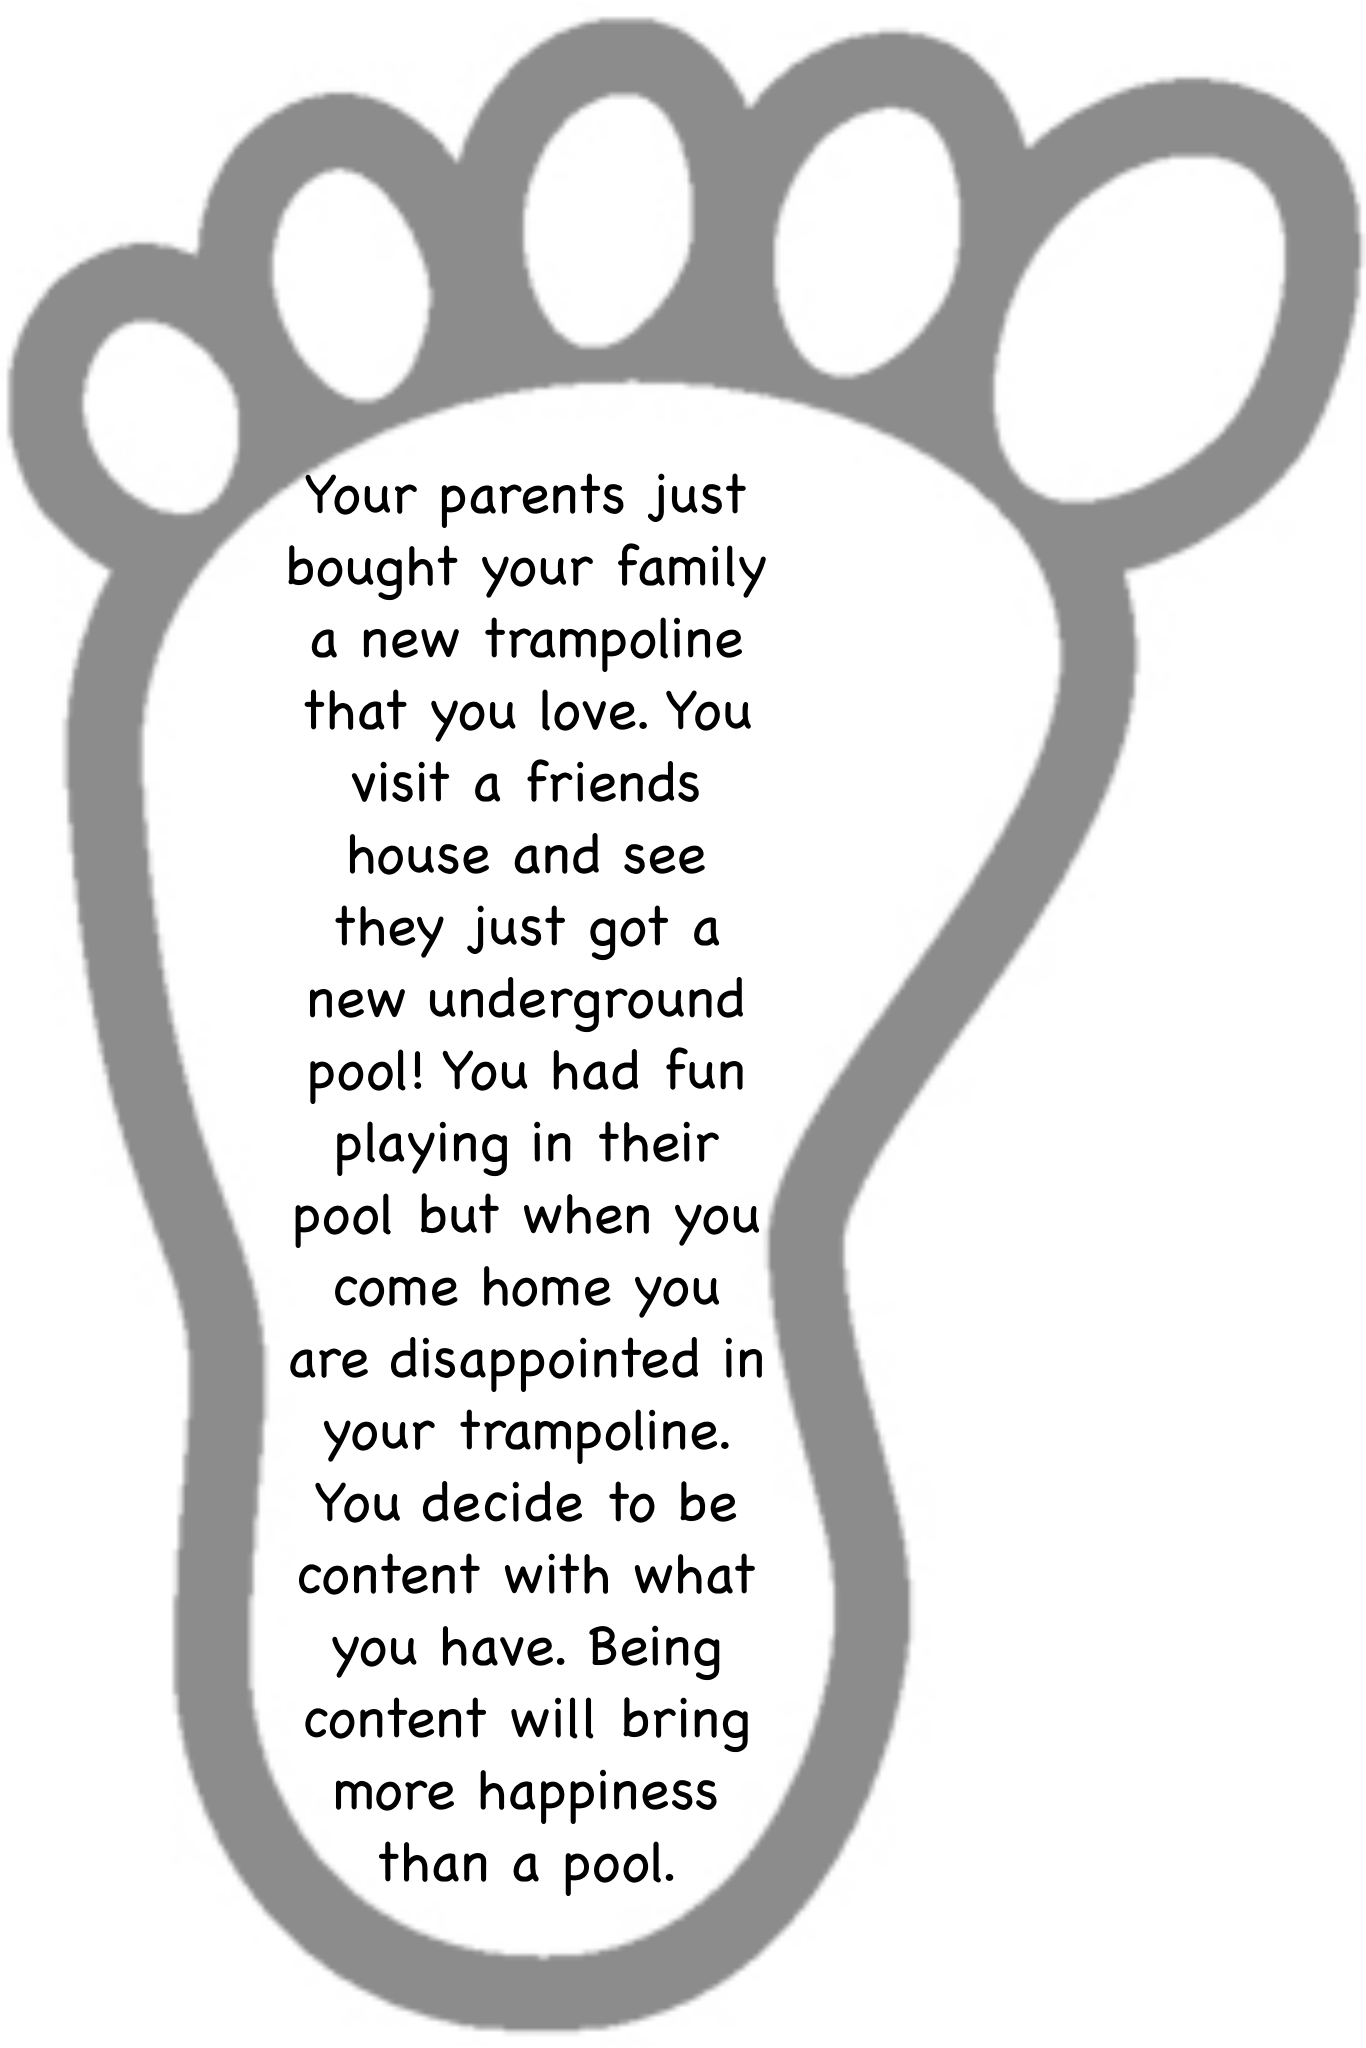

You have been trying to beat the new video game you just got. You have been playing a lot, but now your brother wants a turn. You really don't want to give up your turn because you are so close to winning. You decide to give you brother a turn to play. You can take another turn later. Sharing is the right thing to do.

Your parents just bought your family a new trampoline that you love. You visit a friend's house and see they just got a new underground pool! You had fun playing in their pool but when you come home you are disappointed in your trampoline. You decide to beg your parents to get a pool too. It's important to have the best of everything.

Your parents just bought your family a new trampoline that you love. You visit a friend's house and see they just got a new underground pool! You had fun playing in their pool but when you come home you are disappointed in your trampoline. You decide to be content with what you have. Being content will bring more happiness than a pool.