

Who do you think I am?

Place question cards in one pile in the middle of table. Each player takes a turn pulling a question card and reading the card aloud. All other players will answer the question how they think the Reader would answer the question. Players choose their answer choice card and place it face down in front of them. The player who is reading the card also answers their own question with an answer card face down in front of them. Once everyone has their answer ready, everyone turns their card over together and determines whose answer matches the Readers answer. The next player now takes their turn repeating in the same manner. Continue until each player has taken a turn and the question pile is complete.
